BOSTON'S BUSINESS MEN WELCOME NEW HEAD FOR STREETS

Superintendent Louis K. Rourke Hopes to Give Boston Full Value for Every Dollar Expended.

MEETS MAYOR TODAY

Official Will Spend Several Days in Familiarizing Himself With the Problems of His Position.

The Chamber of Commerce of Boston today gave Louis K. Rourke, who arrived in Boston today to become superintendent of streets, a cordial welcome. The new superintendent, who has been until his appointment to the Boston position, assistant engineer of the central division of the Panama canal, told the members of the Chamber of Commerce assembly, before whom he spoke at the American house at its regular bi-monthly meeting and luncheon, that the canal will be completed one year before the official opening, which is set for Jan. 1, 1915.

Charles S. Hamlin, chairman of the assembly, presided. About 125 were present. At the head table were President Bernard J. Rothwell of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Vice-President Arthur D. Little, Chairman D. O. Ives of the transportation committee and A. W. Donovan of Rockland.

Mr. Rourke presided President Roosevelt's action which resulted in the building of a lock canal instead of a sea-level one. The latter, he said, would require more time for building and be less satisfactory. His only criticism of the French method was that they were 20 years ahead of their time. The heavy machinery which is now used had not then been invented. The United States, he said, has not improved over the French method, but has carried the French methods out more extensively.

The canal work comprises three divisions, the Atlantic, Central and Pacific. As assistant engineer of the Central division Mr. Rourke had charge of the $10,000 plant, having 65 steam shovels and 185 locomotives. He declared that in his repair shops the men had carried the development of the steam shovel to a greater degree of efficiency than anywhere else in the world. Everybody on the canal thinks and talks of nothing but the canal.

The American population in the canal zone, he said, is from 14,000 to 15,000, of whom 9,000 are skilled American mechanics. Under his charge there were 13,000 men. He used 10 tons of dynamite every eight hours. The work represented $5,500,000 outlay every month. He was situated 2000 miles from his base of supplies.

Mr. Rourke said that 65 per cent of the canal had already been completed. The minimum width of the canal at the bottom, he said, is 300 feet, which gives sufficient room for any two modern vessels. There are 15 miles of sea-level canal and 28 miles of lake navigation, out of the total length of 50 miles. Estimating on the basis of the six-mile-an-hour limit with about two hours for lockage, vessels, he said, should traverse the canal in about seven or eight hours. The vessels are raised by the three locks to a height of 85 feet above the sea-level, being raised 28 ft. in the lock.

Mr. Rourke for First Time Sees Mayor Fitzgerald

Mr. Rourke came to Boston today and for the first time met Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, who named him for the $7500 position.

Mr. Rourke, and former Superintendent Emerson met Mayor Fitzgerald in his office this morning. Mr. Rourke said that he desired only to be given a square deal and that in return he hoped to give as excellent an administration as his predecessor.

Mr. Emerson stated today that he estimated his department had saved for the city during the two years of his administration a total of $1,865,303.48. If Mr. Rourke has any startling ideas as to how Boston's street department should be conducted he is keeping them to himself, but he holds firmly one purpose that should help to give Boston a good administration and disappoint those who seek favors from the street department.

Mr. Rourke's idea is to give Boston full value for every dollar expended through the street department, and he will go to any means necessary to make good on this proposal.

Ever since the appointment of Mr. Rourke some weeks ago a certain type of politician has been wondering what kind of a man he would have to deal with, and it is safe to say that the first time he comes in contact with Mr. Rourke he will be disappointed. Mr. Rourke comes to Boston with the declaration on his lips that he does not know what it is to do business with ward politicians and that in so far as the administration of the street department goes there will

PRESIDENT APPOINTS CABINET OFFICERS TO MEET PREDECESSOR

WASHINGTON—President Taft today asked Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Secretary of the Navy Meyer to go to New York to meet former President Roosevelt on his return to this country. They will be accompanied by the President's aide, Captain Butt, who will bear a letter from the President to his predecessor welcoming him home. Secretaries Meyer and Wilson were selected because they were members of the Roosevelt cabinet.

Arrangements have been made for the cabinet members who will greet Mr. Roosevelt to participate in the big naval pageant that will mark his return. With a small party, including Collector of Customs Loeb of New York, they will be taken down the bay in a revenue cutter to meet him.

LONDON—Theodore Roosevelt declared today that he had neither asked for nor would he accept any favors from the New York custom house on his return to America on June 18.

In reply to questions concerning the report from America that, in view of the fact that he had represented the United States as a special ambassador at the

HELP FOR QUAKE VICTIMS SOUGHT

WASHINGTON—The officials of the American Red Cross in Washington state that they will gladly forward to the district in Italy stricken by the earthquake any contributions which might be made to them for that purpose.

ROME—Fifty victims have so far been recovered from the quake ruins in Calitri, Sansevero, San Seles and the other towns that bore the brunt of Monday night's shock. It is believed that the total will not exceed 75. The Red Cross has exhausted its supply of materials and has applied for public contributions. Today's reports indicate that the property loss was tremendous. The King and Queen are expected to return to Rome today. Parliament will probably make another $100,000 appropriation.

TRUNK LINES RECALL WOOL RATE ADVANCE RECENTLY ORDERED

Commerce Commission Is Notified of Change Resulting From New Status of Railroad Legislation.

CONFEREES AT TASK

The interstate commerce commission today is notified of restoration of the old wool rates from Minneapolis to New York and Boston.

President Taft's railroad bill conference recommendation to Congress is adopted. Mr. Taft's motion in the House for an amendment making the clause as to new rates effective immediately, and for acceptance of the Senate amendments, is rejected, 156 to 102.

Congressmen Ames and Gardner of Massachusetts, insurgents, join regulars against Senate bill without conference.

Twenty-one insurgents rally to support of motion.

Six Democrats vote with Republicans for conference, although minority leader Clark stands by bill as amended.

Conferees are in session today and will submit an early report.

Railroad presidents, in meeting with President Taft, agree to withhold increases in freight rates till new law becomes effective.

WASHINGTON—Pursuant to the agreement entered into between President Taft and the representatives of the western trunk line, the roads in the Western Trunk Line Association have taken the back track on the proposed advances in rates.

Today the interstate commerce commission received notice from the Western Trunk Line Association of the restoration of the rate of 55 cents on wool from Minneapolis to New York and the rate of 60 cents on the same commodity between Minneapolis and Boston.

The association had previously given notice of a 10-cent advance in the wool rate between the points named, to take effect June 1. The lower rate is to be put into effect July 7. Shipments from Duluth take the same rates as Minneapolis.

The increases were 10 cents per hundred pounds. These rates were not affected by the recent injunction suit and not involved in the meeting with the President. The notice of withdrawal, however, is said to be a direct outgrowth of the controversy.

Railroad Rate Situation Is Clearer at Washington

At the capitol the railroad rate situation today is clearer than it has been before for several weeks. The railroad bill pending in Congress has gone to a conference committee, which met today and is hard at work preparing to present an early report, and the great railroad systems are holding their new rate schedules in abeyance by agreement with President Taft, until the bill shall have received his signature.

These conferees on the part of the House were named: Mann of Illinois and Wanger of Pennsylvania (Rep.) and Adams of Georgia (Dem.).

The Senate conferees already named are Elkins of West Virginia, Aldrich of Rhode Island (Rep.) and Foster of Louisiana (Dem.).

A message from the President served to bring about this action. He informed Congress of a conference held by him with representative railroad men and urged that the provision of the railroad bill which gives the interstate commerce commission the power to investigate and suspend new rates be made

McCarthy, surveyor of the port of Boston, whose name was recently rejected by the civil service commission for the position of fire commissioner, according to report was to have appeared before the Governor and council at the State House today, to present a statement in defense. Mr. McCarthy says, however, that he will not appear before the Governor today, but that he is preparing a statement which is in the hands of his attorneys, and will probably be presented some time this week.

The MacWatters' quartet of the university sang as usual at the noon meeting. Not only have they sung every noon at the dinner, but every evening they sing for the benefit of the B. U. campaign fund, and so have added several hundreds of dollars to the fund.

The Rev. Norman E. Richardson read a resolution thanking the Boston Press for the reports issued during the campaign.

A friend of the committee gave some diamonds which will be sold tomorrow. The Everett Press gave $100, Thomas A. Forsythe the $250, Prof. A. H. Buck, former head of the Greek department, $1150, from the heirs of the late Elisha S. Converse $500, Mrs. Bigelow $100, Boston Book Company $100.

ELEVATED RAILWAY HOLDING BILL TO GO OVER TO NEXT YEAR

Senator Frank P. Bennett, Jr., of Saugus offered in the Massachusetts Senate today a new amendment to the Boston Elevated Railway Company holding bill, which has the effect of carrying all the questions involved over to the next General Court, providing for an investigation by the railroad and transit commissions in the meantime.

Senators Tinkham and Bennett, each with the unanimous consent of the other senators, withdrew the amendments that they had previously offered on the subject, paving the way for the new resolve, which is the result of a conference between the two senators.

Senator Tinkham said that the new resolve was a broad and fair one, and he hoped that it would be adopted.

In a general way the new resolve is Senator Bennett's previous amendment, to which have been added some of the ideas of Senator Tinkham's previous amendment.

The Senate committee on counties reported a bill on petition of the Bristol county commissioners enabling them to borrow $100,000 to pay for Attleboro courthouse at 4 1/2 per cent interest, instead of 4 per cent, as originally provided for.

On the bill for pensioning teachers in Boston Senator Tinkham of Boston said that, inasmuch as the purpose of this bill was fully provided for in another bill, this legislation is unnecessary. The bill was therefore rejected.

The Boston & Eastern Electric Railway Company bill, providing for a tunnel under Boston harbor, was passed to engrossment this morning.

On motion of Senator Tinkham the rules were suspended and the Bennett resolve was passed to be engrossed and sent to the House.

Without debate or division the bill to validate the stock of the New Haven railroad was ordered to a third reading, and the Boston Railroad Holding Company "preferred stock" bill was passed to be engrossed.

The savings bank bill and the dog officer's bill were put over till tomorrow. The Senate recessed from its amendment to the enacted bill that agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals may visit abattoirs; concurred with the House, reenacted the bill and sent it to the Governor.

The bill to confirm the acts of the selectmen of Palmer in relation to the license commissioners was amended to name each commissioner and then passed to be engrossed.

The mayor's bill for filling vacancies on the board of appeals of the city of Boston was ordered to a third reading. The Senate adjourned.

On motion of Mr. Mildram of Boston the House today reconsidered its rejection of the Neponset river bridge bill. Mr. Crocker of Boston opposed the bill as wholly unnecessary at this time. Mr. Mildram said that the bridge is unsafe, and that it should not be allowed to remain in its present condition. The bridge, he said, is one of importance, as it is in the main line of traffic between Boston and southeastern Massachusetts.

The bill was also favored by C. L. Carr of Boston, Messrs. Langelier and Thomas of Quincy and Mr. Willis of Fall River.

On a rising vote rejection as recommended by the committee on ways and means was negative, 43 to 46.

On a rising vote, 36 to 45, the House refused to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill providing for the appointment of an inspector of alarities, the amendment increasing the appropriation from $500 to $750.

Mr. Armstrong of Somerville urged the passage of a bill appropriating $175,000 for improvements at the state normal school at Bridgewater, which the ways and means committee reported ought not to pass.

On a rising vote rejection was negative, 39 to 54.

Mr. Conway of Boston opposed a bill appropriating $125,025 for various improvements at the Massachusetts Agricultural College. More than $384,000 has been paid in five years, he said, for improvements aside from maintenance. Mr. Bean of Cambridge offered an amendment to strike out the appropriation of $24,500 for an athletic field.

The Berkshire trolley bill was enacted without debate. Adjourned.

COTTON INTERESTS OF BOSTON HELPED BY REORGANIZATION

Cotton brokers in Boston are of the opinion that the reorganization of the Consolidated Cotton Duck Company will greatly benefit the cotton interests in Boston. P. T. Jackson, Jr., president of the Boston Yarn Company, today said that the Consolidated Cotton Duck Company had been taken over by J. Spencer Turner of New York. Mr. Jackson stated, however, that he knew nothing in detail of the reorganization.

News from Baltimore today is to the effect that the Consolidated Cotton Duck Company is to be reorganized. It is proposed to form a new company under the laws of Massachusetts which will acquire 51 per cent each of the common and preferred stocks of the Consolidated Cotton Duck Company. The new corporation also will acquire control of the Boston Yarn Company, which is affiliated with the Cotton Duck Company.

A syndicate now holds the stocks which it is proposed to turn over to the new company. Myron T. Taylor and associates, who will be the dominating factors under the new order of things, will provide the money which it is proposed to raise. This part of the deal has already been arranged. Mr. Taylor will be head of the enterprise.

The stocks of the new company will be listed on the New York and Boston exchanges and the policy will be dictated from Boston. The reorganized concern will have $3,000,000 new working capital. Of this sum approximately $1,000,000 will be used to pay off its debts, leaving a balance of $2,000,000 for future corporate purposes. There will be no new issue of bonds.

FIVE COMMISSIONS ARE APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR DRAPER

Governor Draper sent to the executive council today the appointments of members of five commissions.

James A. Lovell of Newton is appointed chairman of the workingmen's compensation commission, and the other members are James T. Saunders of Clinton, Magnus W. Alexander of Lynn, Henry Howard of Brookline and Joseph A. Parks of Fall River.

The appointees to the Petersburg memorial commission are Charles H. Porter of Quincy, chairman, and James Anderson of Springfield, Gustave Magnitzky of Boston.

The Valley Forge memorial commission as appointed consists of Gen. Philip Reade, Dr. Samuel Crowell and Charles I. Thayer, all of Boston.

Henry E. Lovering of Providence is appointed chairman of the Myles Garrison site commission. Louis S. Sturtevant of Swansea and Joseph Preston Minot of Boston are the other members. Frank R. Snow of Greenfield is appointed public administrator in Franklin county.

ARREST WOMEN'S UNION OFFICIALS

Miss Mabel Gillespie, secretary of the Boston Women's Trade Union League, and Mrs. Glendower Evans were arrested today upon the charge of distributing circulars to girl employees of the Gillette Safety Razor Company in South Boston.

They were released after their names and addresses had been taken. They have been taking great interest in the affairs of working women in and about Boston.

REV. C. G. HORST TO GO ABROAD.

The Rev. Carl G. Horst and Mrs. Horst of Quincy will sail July 13 for Europe, where they will attend the international council of Unitarian churches in Berlin, returning in October.

MOLD FOR CONCRETE OF RIVER VIADUCT IS NEARING COMPLETION

Ornamental Paneled Railway Structure With a Dozen Arches Will Span Charles Below the Dam.

HELP RAPID TRANSIT

Overhead Line to North Station Is Expected to Facilitate Travel Between Suburbs and Boston.

The false structure which will mold the superstructure of the new concrete viaduct of the Boston Elevated Railway Company's elevated extension between Lechmere square, East Cambridge, and the North station entrance to the subway is being rapidly erected on the 13 piers adjoining the Charles river dam on the down-stream side. The combination of the arched viaduct and the dam will form when completed one of the finest pieces of architecture in the city and will be an added component of beauty to the Charles river basin, one of the most attractive features of any city in the country.

The viaduct will rest on 13 piers of granite, the last of which will probably be finished this week, adjoining and built for the most part at the time of the construction of the Charles river dam on the down-stream side.

The viaduct superstructure will span the river in 12 arches of lengths varying from about 95 feet to about 125 feet, including the bascule draw over the channel approach to the lock in the dam. The sides of the viaduct will be paneled and in appearance very similar to the new Cambridge bridge recently opened over the Charles river basin.

The false structure of woodwork which will hold the concrete mixture, reinforced with many steel rods, is now going up on the piers already completed. Many features of this new double track structure have yet to be definitely planned, but it is certain that the lighting effect will add to the superb night spectacle of the illuminated basin.

The architectural features of this viaduct have been drawn by one of the foremost architects in the country, Robert S. Peabody, who was assisted by a committee from the Boston Society of Architects acting in an advisory capacity looking to the very best architectural interests of the city of Boston.

The viaduct when completed will form one more of the many improvements which the Elevated road is carrying out in its endeavor to maintain Boston in the front rank so far as rapid transit is concerned. It will place a large part of Somerville and Cambridge many minutes nearer the North station of the Elevated and the Boston & Maine railroad and the center of the city, and thereby relieve congestion at Sullivan square terminal considerably. The present route of the surface cars through Lechmere square to the North station entrance to the subway is through narrow streets crowded with teaming and taking eight or nine minutes from the square to the North station. The new overhead route will be unobstructed and will take about three minutes between the same points. No trains will use this structure, connections between the surface cars and trains being made at the North station and Haymarket square.

It is probable, although not definitely settled, that the cars will go through to Pleasant street and Dudley street before making their loop for the return trip. The semi-convertible cars now running on the Highland avenue (Somerville) route, the cars of the various other Somerville lines through Beacon street and Union square, and those Cambridge lines which will not use the new Cambridge subway when completed will also be brought into the subway over this new viaduct.

MILK CONTRACTORS FINED.

The C. Brigham Company, milk contractor, was fined $50 in the South Boston district court by Judge Fallon today. Inspector James Jordan, who was the complainant, said that samples of milk taken from wagons belonging to this company were not in accordance with the requirements. John F. Cusick, who represented the firm, appealed the case.

UNCONFIRM FLIGHT TO BOSTON

City officials and others questioned today said they knew of no foundation for the published reports that arrangements were under way for Glenn H. Curtiss to make a flight from New York to Boston and land on the Huntington avenue grounds.

HONOR SHOWN M. PICHON PLEASES FRENCH PEOPLE

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
PARIS—A profound impression has been produced throughout the whole of France by the manner in which M. Pichon and the other members of the French special mission have been received in England. The honor shown to M. Pichon at Windsor Castle and the gracious manner in which King George and the Queen mother expressed their appreciation of French sympathy are regarded as a most happy indication of the endurance of the entente cordiale. The Temps announces that M. Pichon's interview with Sir Edward Grey was completely satisfactory.

"Certain questions," this newspaper says, "exist at present in the Mediterranean and Asia, and these the cabinets of London and Paris have decided to discuss in common with the cabinet of St. Petersburg. The conversation between the two ministers defined the attitude of the two governments in this respect. The view was expressed that the Cretan affairs should be the subject of a definite settlement, which, while guaranteeing to the island the broad autonomy no one disputes, shall oblige it to respect the legal status defined by Europe."

Regarding Persian affairs, M. Pichon and Sir Edward Grey agreed that questions in that region, if managed with loyalty and firmness, in conformity with acquired rights, can and should be settled in the most pacific manner. On his return to Paris, M. Pichon made a special visit to Rambouillet, where he reported to the President, M. Fallieres.

SHOULD IMPROVE OR GIVE UP CONTROL SAYS M. MILLERAND

(Special to The Monitor.)
PARIS—M. Millerand, the minister of public works, has returned from a three days' trip of investigation over the lines of the Western State railway, which was purchased recently from a private company and placed under government control. The wisdom of this purchase has been much questioned by both press and public. Both have been unanimous in insisting upon certain necessary improvements in the service and in the management of the line.

On his return to Paris, M. Millerand expressed the opinion that, unless the government was prepared to carry out certain improvements, they had better give up the control of the line. He said that an expenditure of $11,000,000 a year for 10 years would be required. The improvements in suburban services alone will cost $20,000,000.

M. Millerand is also considering the granting of premiums to employees for rapid telephone connection at the central office. This system has already been tried with success on the Paris-Algiers telegraph lines, where the transmission is exceedingly difficult. Each operator is paid a premium of nearly one cent for each lot of 10 messages sent. It is estimated that the adoption of the system of premiums in the telephone service will not cost more than $12,000 a year.

LEGISLATIVE ACT WILL CAUSE DELAY IN PUBLIC WORKS

(Special to The Monitor.)
EDMONTON, Alberta—The climax in the political affairs of the province, when Chief Justice Sifton resigned his seat on the bench to form a new cabinet on account of Premier Rutherford's resignation, is apt to have a more or less disturbing effect upon certain branches of business. Because of the failure of the Legislature to pass the necessary estimates before its prorogation the government employees will not only be kept waiting for their salary checks, but many contemplated public works will have to go over for another session, together with a number of projected railway lines who were seeking charters at the recent session.

The most serious delay will probably be in the telephone department. Extensions had been planned all over the province to bring the outlying towns and districts into touch with the main centers, but these will have to lay over for another session for lack of funds. The Edmonton Interurban railway, which contemplated the construction of a considerable section of its line this year will be delayed on account of not receiving its charter from the government. In the meantime the political situation is more or less uncertain, and a general election may be brought on at any time.

ANNUAL SPRING FLOWER SHOW IS HELD AT TEMPLE GARDENS

(Special to The Monitor.)
LONDON—The annual spring exhibition of the Royal Horticultural Society held at the Inner Temple gardens is always an event of the early London season, and the flower show this year is even above the average in providing actual novelties in the way of form, size and color. Orchids, tulips and carnations, roses, amaryllis, clematis, calla lilies, are some among the flowers "improved" to such an extent that at first sight they appear as strangers to the non-professional gaze. Great banks and patches of glorious color greet the eye from all sides of the exhibition tents, and a large portion of the grounds is given over to specimen rock-gardens and a Japanese garden; to hardy herbaceous and Alpine plants, flowering shrubs, and trained box and yew trees in tubs. In the rose tent are perfect examples of the "Tausendschoen" rambler, the "Ulrich Brunner," a cherry crimson rose of immense size; "Mrs. John Laing," a large and finely formed rose of a lovely pink color, and the famous "Frau Karl Druschki" of pure snow white, so striking in size and shape and giving out from among its rich foliage such fragrance and coolness that admirers stand spellbound before it. For sheer beauty and brilliancy of color nothing could surpass the massing together of the hardy azaleas or of the hybrid rhododendrons, showing every tone from pale lemon to deepest orange, and every shade of pink merging into lilac or darkening into red. Splendid specimens of vegetables and fruit are also exhibited, and fine collections of indoor plants, ferns and foliage.

The exhibitors include nursery gardeners and amateurs from all over the British isles, and at the end of the three days show, the flowers and fruits are sold off at "bargain" prices. The society has been in existence over 100 years. It was started in 1804 by Mr. John Wedgwood (of pottery fame), when a few gentlemen gathered on March 7 at Mr. Hatchard's, the publisher, in Piccadilly. It was first styled the Horticultural Society of London, and was founded to advance the practical aspects of horticulture. As time went on collectors were sent out to all parts of the world, and the plants thus obtained were grown and studied in the society's gardens, eventually enriching and benefiting private gardens throughout the kingdom. In 1858, the Prince Consort consented to become its president, and in 1880 a new charter was granted by Queen Victoria, and it became the Royal Horticultural Society. The year 1904, its centenary, was marked by a great celebration, for Sir Thomas Hanbury, K.C. V.O., purchased Mr. Wilson's well-known Wisley garden and estate, and presented it in trust to the society, and at the same time Baron Sir Henry Schroder was instrumental in acquiring the site in Vincent square, Westminster, and building the new hall, which contains the offices, lecture rooms and headquarters of the society.

The society's school of horticulture is at Wisley and is conducted by F. J. Chittenden, F. L. S., the director, and six school managers under regulations of the board of education. There is an elementary and advanced course of instruction, a laboratory for scientific research was established in 1907, and a well-equipped meteorological station has also been installed. Applicants must not exceed 22 years of age, a fee of £5 5s. covers all expenses and those students who use application have opportunity to study the whole general subject of horticulture practically.

From its earliest days the society has held meetings, exhibitions, lectures and examinations. It now holds annually a spring bulb show, a spring flower show, a summer flower show and an autumn show of British grown fruits and vegetables. The summer flower show will again this year be held in the beautiful grounds of Holland house in Kensington, but in 1911 it will take place at Olympia instead.

NEW AEROPLANE TRAVELS ON STREETS AS WELL AS IN AIR

(Special to The Monitor.)
BERLIN—As was reported recently, the residents of Berlin witnessed the flight of an aeroplane across the city. They have now witnessed the passage of an aeroplane, traveling under its own power, along the streets of the German capital. The Grawert aeroplane, the special feature of which is its ability to travel, not only in the air, but along the ground, was seen traveling at an early hour in the morning not many days ago from the Tempelhof parade ground to Tagel, where are the quarters of the airship battalions. The aeroplane was propelled by its own screws.

LONDON—The mishap which occurred to the army dirigible No. 2 has now been rectified and a successful trip of two hours' duration has since been made, the repaired envelope which it will be remembered, was damaged by a high wind, proving to be quite satisfactory.

Slowly but surely the aeroplane is proving itself to be more and more a practical means of locomotion. The channel has already been crossed three times, and aeroplanes have been seen sailing over the capitals of France and Germany. Mr. Latham has paid visits in his monoplane, Grahame White has appeared at the county court using the same means of travel, in addition to which he has now successfully accomplished a flight from the aerodrome at Brooklands to Ranelagh Club in London. So accomplished is Grahame White becoming in the manipulation of his biplane that, instead of sending it by train, it is quite probable that he will fly from London to Halifax where he has promised to give a series of flying demonstrations shortly.

It is announced that Grahame White's new aeroplane is said to be in a more or less completed condition. This aeroplane on which Mr. White intends to attempt to fly from London to Paris embodies a number of improvements which the famous flying man considers will be of great advantage. In an interview published in the Daily Mail, Mr. White said in discussing the new biplane, "that it follows very closely the design of the Sommer biplane. This aeroplane, evolved by Roger Sommer, the famous French aviator, after much experience of the Farman biplane, embodies all the good points of that splendid machine, and has, in addition, one or two new features which appeal to me. My own contribution to the machine is a special rear plane, or tail, which can be altered in its angle while in flight. Sometimes, when you are in the air, the tail of a biplane gets too low, reducing your speed. My design will prevent this happening."

It is believed that when Grahame White starts on his famous journey, he will follow the route from London to Folkestone, crossing the channel to Boulogne and from thence to Paris, following the railway line. The first stop after leaving London will in all probability be on the French coast.

IMPERIAL EDICT GIVES CHINESE NEW CURRENCY

(Special to The Monitor.)
PEKING—According to an imperial edict published here, a standard currency dollar has been established, as well as a subsidiary coinage of pieces of 50, 25 and 10 cents silver, 5 cents nickel and 5 mills and 1 mill copper. The weight of the dollar is 72 candareens. The present coinage will no longer be issued by the provincial mints and the board of finance will superintend the issue of the coinage referred to in the above mentioned imperial edict.

AUCTION OF LOTS BY GOVERNMENT

(Special to The Monitor.)
VICTORIA, B. C.—Increasing interest is being taken in the approaching auction of government lots in the new townsite of Stewart, in the Portland canal mining district, which is expected to take place in this city shortly. So great has been the development at that point that it is expected before the end of the year to be an incorporated city, with waterworks, electric light and telephone systems. It is proposed to expend $50,000 this summer in the construction of wharves and dockage facilities, in order to handle the supplies for the smelter.

DAILY MAIL PRINTS COMPLETE PAPER AT THE WHITE CITY

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
LONDON—The Japan-British exhibition is open at the White City, and great crowds have already passed the turnstiles, anxious to see the interesting collections of armor, paintings, and the innumerable specimens of Japanese art generally, many of which have not been exhibited previously to the public, even in Japan itself.

The Daily Mail has, as usual, provided an interesting exhibit in the "Golden Dome," where many of the ingenious and interesting mechanical details necessary for the production of a newspaper are exhibited. The machinery includes the original printing press used for the publication of the first issue of the Daily Mail 40 years ago. This two-roll Hoe press represented the latest type of printing machine, and it was capable of turning out as many as 24,000 copies of an eight-page paper in one hour.

To the man in the street this now obsolete press seems to be capable of performing wonders, but when it is realized that two years ago an octuple Hoe press was exhibited at the Franco-British exhibition, capable of doing the work of four of the older machines, or turning out as many as 48,000 copies of a 16-page paper per hour, and also capable of printing, if necessary, an edition of 32 pages, some idea is gained of the rapid progress that has been made in so short a time. In this building the public can watch the whole mechanical process of producing a newspaper; they can see the type set up by the linotype machine; they can watch the plates being produced by the autotype machine, and so on until, driven by a 115-horsepower gas engine, the huge machine turns out a ceaseless flow of clearly printed and neatly folded newspapers.

A panoramic view is also given of a small portion of the Newfoundland forests from which so much of the paper is manufactured, a model of the paper-making machine illustrating the various operations through which the timber is passed until the paper ready for use is produced.

WOMEN OF GERMANY ORGANIZE A BANK TO MEET GROWING NEED

(Special to The Monitor.)
BERLIN—The recent orderly demonstration of the people on the franchise question in this city were not without their significance. They may be said to be the first step toward freedom of speech and indeed action. The relentless arm of the law has perforce been relaxed; the people are asserting their right to a free and orderly expression of opinion.

Woman also is asserting herself, and proving that she is by no means so devoid of business capacity as has been supposed. This is being admirably illustrated by the establishment of an independent women's joint stock bank in one of the newest western suburbs of the capital. The women who are responsible for this undertaking have made themselves thoroughly acquainted with the usual business methods, and have formed a syndicate.

They have also issued a printed statement setting forth the aim and object of the bank they are about to establish. Independent women, they point out, are frequently in need of small sums, such as ordinary banks are not in favor of lending. The main object of this women's bank is to meet this demand, and it is the intention of the syndicate to commence with a capital of $25,000 in shares of $25 each.

It is believed that the idea will be popular among women and that a number, whether engaged in a trade or profession or not, will avail themselves of the advantages offered and either open an account by depositing a certain sum or by making use of the institution as a savings bank.

ITALIAN RETURNS GERMAN VISIT

BERLIN—The Marquis di San Giuliano, minister of foreign affairs for Italy, has arrived in order to return the visit of the imperial chancellor, Herr von Bethmann Hollweg to Rome. The marquis also presented himself to the Emperor William by whom he was received in audience at Potsdam.

The Post points out that it is the first time that an Italian minister of foreign affairs has paid a visit to Berlin for the purpose of presenting himself to the Emperor. The same journal declares that it would be a good thing if this custom were continued in the future, in order that the responsible ministers of the states, forming the Triple Alliance, might come more into contact with the members of the governments of the Allied States.

PROSPERITY CAUSE OF SALARY RAISE IN NEW SOUTH WALES

(Special to The Monitor.)
SYDNEY, N. S. W.—The general condition of affairs in this state may be described as exceedingly prosperous, the industry being in an entirely satisfactory condition. In view of this excellent condition the Hon. G. C. Wade, K. C., the prime minister, has issued an order raising the salary of the lower grades of the civil service, policemen and others.

Owing to the satisfactory conditions now prevailing it is considered advisable in the interest of the state to extend the railway system in the country in order that greater facilities may be afforded for the transport of farming produce and manufactured goods. In fact, some 5000 first-class laborers are at present engaged in railway construction, and there will undoubtedly be ample employment for a large number of men during the coming winter.

Meanwhile large tracts of land are being cleared and it is expected that a considerable area will be ready for plowing next season.

NICARAGUAN ASKS COURT MEDIATION

WASHINGTON—General Estrada, the Nicaraguan insurgent chief, has appealed to the Cartago court of justice asking its influence to obtain from President Madrid a reply to his offer of March 14 proposing that the United States mediate between the two, and that an election be held for President at which neither Estrada nor Madrid shall be a candidate.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua—"At the first shot fired against the American flag on an American vessel I will level the bluff," replied Commander Hines of the United States steamship Dubuque to General Rivas of the Madrid force, who says he will hold Bluefields bluff to stop by force any vessels of whatever nationality entering the harbor.

LORD KITCHENER'S PLAN IS FOLLOWED

WELLINGTON, N. Z.—It has been decided by the government that the empire authorities shall be requested to nominate an officer who shall take full charge of the defenses of New Zealand, at the same time inaugurating the scheme of defenses recommended by Lord Kitchener. The taking of this step is considered as most satisfactory since it will ensure the inauguration of the new system on a satisfactory basis.

CITY OF MEXICO IS FIRST.

(Special to The Monitor.)
MEXICO CITY—The director-general of public works of this city has just given out some interesting statistics relative to the extension of the tracks of the electric street railway, which shows that there are 88 1/2 miles of track in operation by the Compania de Tranvias Electricos de Mexico within the city limits alone. Thus the City of Mexico, of all the Latin American cities, occupies the first place in so far as concerns the mileage of its street car lines.

ROYAL MAIL ABSORBS RIVAL.

LONDON—The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company has absorbed the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, which was its chief rival. The capital involved is $7,385,000. The deal is the result of the recent completion of the Andes tunnel, which has opened communication between Valparaiso and Buenos Aires.

BROWN FACES U: OF P. TODAY

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Determined to break even if possible with the Pennsylvania team, Brown will meet the Quakers on the home field this afternoon. Brown will present her strongest line-up in the hopes of defeating the visitors. It is probable that Bliss, the senior twirler and Providence man, will pitch and the rest of the team will be practically the same as played against Yale. Bliss pitched a capital game against the Elis. Brown was defeated by Pennsylvania at Philadelphia May 25, though with a margin of but one run, the tally being 5 to 6. The Brunonians have won 11 games out of a total of 20 played this season, and tied one contest, namely, with Yale at New Haven on May 18. The team will face the Pennsylvanians fresh from an entire week's rest, both the Wesleyan and Stevens Institute games carded for last week being canceled.

POSTPONED GAME THIS AFTERNOON

Harvard Meets Dartmouth on Soldiers Field—Former Led by One Run to None When Game Was Called.

Harvard meets Dartmouth this afternoon in their baseball game which was postponed from Tuesday after four innings had been played, the score being 1 to 0 in favor of Harvard when play was stopped. The four innings played were enlivened by two double plays, one by each team. At the start of the fourth inning Norton hit a three-bagger to left center. Brady fanned, but Daly hit a liner directly into Marshall's hands and Norton was easily doubled at third.

In the third inning Rogers for Harvard beat out a grounder to the shortstop, and McLaughlin followed with a long drive between center and right which looked like a sure hit. Hoban got it by fast running, and Rogers, who had gone to third on the play, was easily doubled at first. Harvard's run was scored by Lanigan, who was given a base on balls, stole second and continued to third on the catcher's poor throw to second. Another throw to second in an attempt to prevent Marshall from stealing resulted in another error, this one by Norton, who failed to get the short throw from the catcher, and Lanigan scored before the ball was recovered.

KRAFT CAPTAINS CREW.

Squire Kraft was elected captain of the crew of Brookline high, winner of the championship of the Boston Intercollegiate Rowing Association for 1910 at a meeting held Tuesday. Next year will be Kraft's third season in the first crew. He has rowed at No. 3 and has done much toward bringing the title to Brookline.

NEWTON HIGH GOLFERS LEAD.

NATIONAL ARCHERY ASSOCIATION BUSY PLANNING TOURNEY

Many New Trophies Have Been Offered for Competition in the Annual Championship Contests.

MANY EXPECTED

CHICAGO—The committee in charge of arranging the annual championship tournament of the National Archery Association for 1910 is making much progress and has secured a number of new trophies which will be up for competition this year. The date fixed for the tourney is Aug. 16, 17, 18 and 19.

F. C. Havens of Oakland, Cal., has again shown interest in this sport by offering beautiful pens in rings for the ladies, and scarf pins for the gentlemen. These will be competed for at the double American round and at the double Columbia round.

Miss Sullivan and Miss Spalding of the Chicago archers have offered a fine gold watch to the gentleman, who most increases his score made last year at the double York round. The gentlemen members of the Chicago archers have offered a fine watch under similar conditions to the ladies shooting the national round.

A beautiful cup, offered by Edward B. Weston, will be competed for by lady and gentlemen archers and awarded the archer making most golds at an end at any fixture on the program at any time during the meeting. This trophy will become the property of the archer who wins it three consecutive years. This will lead archers to try to hit the gold, not merely the target.

Willard B. Gillette of Troy, N. Y., has contributed a painting to be awarded to the lady archer, shooting in her first tournament, who makes the highest score at the Columbia round. Mr. Gillette is one of the foremost painters of game birds and fishes in this country, and is himself a good archer.

Many persons have taken up archery this spring for the first time and it is expected that this year's tourney will have one of the largest entry lists in some years.

RATIONAL GOLF BY JASON ROGERS.

Frederick Herreshoff of Garden City is one of the longest drivers in the amateur ranks in the country. He likewise, next after Walter J. Travis and Jerome D. Travers, is probably the strongest match play golfer in the East.

Last year in the metropolitan championship at Apawamis he reached the final round against Walter J. Travis and made the "old man" make a round in 71, equaling the record for the green in order to win. Later he beat Travis at Lakewood, but Travis turned the tables on him at Lakewood last month, but by a narrow margin of only one up.

Herreshoff has played golf from early childhood, and his drive represents that great freedom and power obtained from a full, graceful swing. He usually stands with the right foot a trifle advanced beyond the left, and plays the ball from well over the left.

His long, consistent driving accompanied by a high degree of brilliancy and finish at the short game when at his best makes him a most fascinating player to watch.

At Garden City long driving is frequently punished by crossroads and bunkers far short of where Herreshoff naturally reaches on his full shots, which compels him to use irons to keep out of trouble, where most players would hit with wood as far as they could.

YALE EIGHTS IN PRACTISE BRUSH

Varsity and Freshmen Race Half Mile and Varsity Wins in 2 Minutes 15 Seconds.

NEW LONDON, Conn.—Yale's rowing squad again put in some hard practise Tuesday. The usual morning maneuvers were held in the vicinity of the naval station, the halfway station on the four-mile course. Both eights had a lively run for a half-mile, under the watch-down stream, the freshmen losing the brush by nearly two boat lengths. The varsity boat covered the distance in 2m. 15s.

Every crew was ordered out at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening and rowed down stream, not returning to the boathouse until 7:20. The two eights paddled a total of nine miles and appeared to be in fine form when they arrived at the boat. Wallis, the regular varsity stroke, was back in his old position and pulled a strong, clean row.

The shakeup in Harvard's varsity boat was the leading topic at Broadway today. The New Haveners are anxious to get a line on their rivals who are scheduled to arrive at Gales Ferry next Sunday afternoon.

YALE MAY TIE PENNSYLVANIA

New Haven Authorities Refuse to Confirm or Deny Rumor Regarding Investigation of Dean H. Waite.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Yale athletic authorities refuse to deny or confirm the rumor that an investigation is being conducted with a view to establishing the fact that Dean H. Waite, 1912, of Syracuse University, who finished second to Joseph Horner, Jr., of Michigan in the shot-put of the intercollegiate track and field meet at Philadelphia last month, entered that college this fall from Colgate and was ineligible this year under the one-year resident rule.

Should it be found that Waite is now in his first year at Syracuse it would give E. H. Coy of Yale second and J. R. Kilpatrick of Yale third in the shot-put instead of third and fourth. This would add 2 points to Yale's final score of 25½ points, making it 27½, the same as that scored by Pennsylvania.

While the Yale authorities would be more than pleased to see Waite's points thrown out of the final reckoning, a prominent member of the athletic committee gave it as his opinion today that this would be a virtual impossibility unless Syracuse University itself agreed to give up Waite's points. In the opinion of this member even the I. A. A. A. A. has not the power to order Waite's points thrown out unless Syracuse is willing.

"The case brings up an interesting point," said the member, "and I hope the matter will be brought to a head. Unless I am mistaken, however, Yale has little chance of taking Waite's points unless his alma mater consents and I scarcely look for that."

In connection with this it is interesting to note that Yale was awarded the meet in 1902 after Harvard had actually won it. The decision was given to Yale on the ground that W. A. Schick, Jr., had won a prize in an open meet and was therefore ineligible to run in the intercollegiate his first year in college.

MORE CHANGES AT HARVARD.

More experimental changes were made in the order of the Harvard varsity eight Tuesday afternoon. Metcalf was shifted from 3 to 7, Bacon going back to his old position at 5. Waid went in at 3. The boat did not go very well as all the men did not seem to be at ease in their new positions, with the result that the crew was not well together.

On reaching the float the crew changed back to the order in which it rowed in the Cornell race with the exception that Metcalf rowed 3. In this order the crew showed much improvement. It is likely that some further experiments will be tried this week, but before the eight leaves for New London a definite order will be picked.

funeral of the late King Edward, his baggage would be allowed the exemption from customs inspection that attaches to ambassadorial agents, he said.

"I have not asked any consideration of the New York port or any special consideration for my own baggage or that of my family. I expect to pass through the customs the same as any private citizen returning from abroad. I expect to pay full duty on every article not exempted to the general traveling public."

Mr. Roosevelt said he was aware that many complaints had been made against the New York port of alleged over-zealousness of its officials and he would like to see for himself whether the complaints were justified.

NEW YORK—At least three western Governors will come to New York for the reception to Mr. Roosevelt on his return June 18, or will send representatives.

Governors Eberhart of Minnesota, Hay of Washington and Gillett of California have telegraphed to the reception committee and invitations are going to Governors of all states. A general call has been issued to all camp commanders of the Spanish war veterans.

The program for the reception to Mr. Roosevelt is now determined. Mr. Roosevelt on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria of the Hamburg-American line will reach quarantine in the upper bay at 9 a. m. June 18. The former president will board a revenue cutter and proceed to the Battery, where he will be officially welcomed by Mayor Gaynor. Early in the morning every available craft, laden with crowds of enthusiasts, will sail to meet the Kaiserin and will escort the cutter to its destination. Several organizations, which have chartered ocean-going steamers, will pick up the liner east of Fire Island and add the tooting of their whistles to the roar of the guns of Ft. Wadsworth and Hamilton as the ship passes through the Narrows.

The land parade will form at the battery and proceed up Broadway to Washington square, thence through the Washington arch and up Fifth avenue to Fifty-ninth street, the point of dismissal.

effective immediately upon the signing of the act.

There was a lively contest in the House as to whether the Senate amendments should be accepted as a whole or the measure should be given into the hands of conferees from the House and Senate.

The insurgents and Democrats, who were opposed to a conference, declared that the President's wishes as to the immediate effectiveness of the interstate commerce rate approval clause could be met on the part of the House with a single amendment regarding the time when the act should go into effect.

The regulars, who desired to have the bill sent to the conference for a "smoothing out" process, declared that the only way to effect the President's wishes was to send the bill to conference. They finally won out by six votes.

James J. Hill Condemns Antagonism to Railroads

ST. PAUL—That the people will suffer if the railroads are not permitted their own way in increasing rates where needed is the opinion of James J. Hill of the Great Northern. In an interview here today he said:

"It is the people who must be the ultimate sufferers. If the administration wants to cripple the railroads it will have the opportunity. The trouble with our statesmen is that they do not know the effect of their own acts. The railroads need increased facilities for handling business. It takes millions of dollars to carry on these needed improvements, but the railroads cannot hope to get the necessary money under present conditions."

"The Great Northern has refused to have anything to do with the conference in Washington. It will obey the law, as it always has tried to. We often find it hard, however, to find out what the law is."

Interviewer of Kaiser Wilhelm Finds That He Loves to Read the Bible

KAISER WILHELM II.

Emperor of Germany declares that the Scriptures afford instruction as well as consolation.

BERLIN—That Emperor William tries to guide his every action by the precepts of the Bible was the statement made today in a published interview which the Rev. Mr. Stolle, one of Berlin's leading preachers, had recently with the Kaiser.

"I love to read the Bible," the Kaiser is quoted as saying. "It lies nightly on a table near my bedside. I cannot understand why so many people do not read this great book. Whenever I have to decide some weighty question, I ask myself what the Bible in just such a case as perplexes me would teach me to do. We all have our bitter hours, when pride gives way to humility. It is at such times that the Bible affords me the greatest consolation."

COLEMAN TAKES STAND IN KELIHER CASE AT OPENING

Surprise by Defense Brings Out Statement That Attorney Will Produce Man Who Wired Money.

George W. Coleman, the self-confessed wrecker of the National City Bank of Cambridge, was the first witness to be called by the defense in the case of the government against William J. Kelihier, charged with conspiracy in looting the Cambridge bank, in the United States circuit court today, Judge Hale presiding. The calling of Coleman as the first witness was a decided surprise. His testimony occupied all the forenoon session and dealt with his methods of changing the books of the bank. This testimony was the same as the defense tried to bring out from Coleman on cross-examination as a government witness and which the judge would not admit at that time.

In continuing his opening argument, Atty. Harvey H. Pratt declared that he would show that Coleman never made any money in the stock market, as he testified. He further stated that the defense would produce the man who wired $200 to Coleman under the name of McTaggart at Kansas City, and he admitted that Kelihier was instrumental in sending this money.

Frank P. Earle, cashier of the National City Bank of Cambridge, was the second witness to be called by the defense and for an hour and a half he was examined by Attorney Pratt relative to his personal knowledge of the bank's affairs from 1906 until its closing last February.

HANOVER, N. H.—Two gifts of $30,000 and $10,000 each, to Dartmouth College, were announced Tuesday night by President E. F. Nichols.

IOWA POLL PREDICTS DEFEAT OF CUMMINS INDORSED CANDIDATE

DES MOINES, Ia.—Returns from 35 out of 99 counties of Iowa today indicate that Governor B. F. Carroll was re-nominated at Tuesday's Republican primaries over former Governor Warren C. Garst, the progressive candidate. Governor Carroll now claims the nomination by 5000, but Mr. Garst has not yet given up hope.

Governor Carroll made his campaign on his state record, ignoring national politics, but his support came largely from the Iowa Taft Club, which is organizing in every precinct to obtain indorsement of the Taft administration at the state convention next August.

Congressman J. A. T. Hull of the seventh district, a stalwart Cannon man, has certainly gone down to defeat. Mr. Hull has served 20 years in Congress, and for the fifth time was opposed Tuesday by Judge S. F. Prouty, a Des Moines progressive. Mr. Prouty won by a majority of about 2000 and carried every county in his district but one.

In the ninth district Walter I. Smith, the stand-pat member of the House rules committee and possible candidate for speaker, was renominated by about 1000 over Atty. W. H. Byers, who ran as a progressive. Probably Judge H. M. Townner of Corning is the nominee over John Darrah in the eighth district. Judge Townner is a "stand-patter." C. A. Kennedy, the "stand-pat" candidate, won out in the first district.

The following unopposed congressional candidates were nominated by progressives; all stand-patters had contestants:

Second district, Charles G. Glick; third district, Charles E. Pickett; fourth district, G. N. Haugen, D. D. Murphy (Dem.); fifth district, James W. Good, S. C. Huber (Dem.); sixth district, N. E. Kimball, Daniel W. Hamilton (Dem.); seventh district, Elliott H. Hubbard. Of the foregoing all the Republicans are incumbent except Glick.

For the other state offices George W. Clark is renominated for Lieutenant-Governor. Messrs. Hayward for secretary of state and Bleckley for auditor are also renominated. For attorney-general George Cosson, progressive, and Guy E. Feely, "stand-patter," are running neck and neck. Estimates cannot be made at this time on the rest of the ticket.

PIERRE, S. D.—The nomination of Robert S. Vessey, progressive, for governor, is indicated by the latest returns received today from Tuesday's Republican primaries. George W. Egan of Sioux Falls, who ran as an independent Republican, however, claims his nomination by 2700.

E. W. Martin and C. H. Burke, the present congressmen, claim to have been renominated over Messrs. Thorson and Schrader, the progressive candidates. The progressives claim the entire state ticket and control of the Legislature. This claim is, however, disputed by the stalwarts.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—It is conceded today that Napoleon B. Broward will be elected to the United States Senate by a majority of 1500 votes.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Swager Sherry has been nominated for reelection to Congress at the Democratic primaries in the fifth district.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—For the first time in six years, Republicans of Wisconsin will meet in state convention in the auditorium this afternoon for the purpose of ascertaining the general party sentiment toward the present national administration, and to consider the advisability of recommending or indorsing candidates for state offices to be voted for at the September primary election.

BOSTON'S BUSINESS MEN WELCOME NEW HEAP FOR STREETS

be no occasion for finance commission investigations as he intends to run the department on a high level absolutely devoid of graft or any suspicious transactions.

The new superintendent of streets believes that his biggest proposition in taking up his new work will be to secure a fair day's work for an honest wage. He declares that this is one of the biggest problems engineers have to deal with anywhere, and it is one on which he has worked for many years, so that in the case of the city of Boston the mayor and the citizens can depend upon him to secure this for them.

He has handled large bodies of men in the tropics, the last work on which he was engaged in the Panama canal zone calling for a monthly disbursement of more than $500,000.

The new official is coming here today about as ignorant so far as the problems of Boston's street department are concerned as it would be possible for a man to be, as he has not been in the city for any length of time since his college days at Technology. He will devote the most of his time for a few days to touring the city and getting in touch with some of the most prominent features of his work.

Mr. Rourke is admittedly not much of an office man and expects to spend the greater part of his working hours on

BIG CROSS-COUNTRY FLIGHTS SHOULD GO FROM WEST TO EAST

NEW YORK—Wilbur Wright, who is in New York to attend the appeal of Louis Paulhan from the injunction granted against him by Federal Judge Hand in favor of the Wright Company, says of the race between Chicago and New York for the $25,000 prize:

"The race should do much to help along the game and popularize it. I think the race should be flown from Chicago to New York because reports for a number of years show that the prevailing winds in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western New York are from the west most of the year. The records show that the average speed of these winds at a height from the ground of about 150 feet is 15 miles an hour."

"Now, in a long race between Chicago and New York this factor will cut a big difference. Since the normal speed of the average heavier-than-air machine is 40 miles an hour, if the race is run from west to east, the machines will be helped along and their normal speed increased by this 15-mile wind strength. If, on the other hand, the contest starts in New York and ends in Chicago, the average mileage of the competing aeroplanes will be but 25 miles an hour."

Charles K. Hamilton in an automobile today is studying the Palisades to ascertain what difficulty they will offer to his crossing on his flight from New York to Philadelphia, scheduled for next Saturday. He has selected a landing place at Philadelphia. It is about half a mile north of North Penn Junction and just across the circle which marks the four-mile mark from the Philadelphia city hall. This distance, of course, is computed as the crow flies. Along the railroad the distance from the Broad Street station to Hamilton's landing place is about seven miles.

NEW YORK—Inventors of flying machines as well as amateur aviators are aroused by the offer of two new prizes during a dinner given Tuesday night by the New York Press Club to Glenn H. Curtiss. The most important prize is $15,000, offered by Edwin Gould to the inventor of the best successful aeroplane having two motors and two propellers. The announcement of the prize was made by J. B. Walker, editor of the Scientific American, who stated that conditions and details of the prize would be later announced.

The second prize was a silver trophy offered by the Evening World for the longest cross-country flight made by an amateur during the year. Recently there has grown among aviators a feeling that it is time to make a distinction between amateurs and professionals, and this prize is the first substantial step in that direction.

LONDON—Col. F. S. Cody, who is in charge of the heavier-than-air experiments of the British army, is preparing his apparatus to attempt a flight similar to that made by the army dirigible on Saturday above the city of London. Colonel Cody is a firm believer in the efficacy of the army aeroplane, and is desirous of proving its worth to the military authorities.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Hotel men here are preparing to raise $25,000 as a prize to be offered to the aviator who will break the ocean flying record over the sea outside the boardwalk in July. Glenn Curtiss will compete for the prize.

LONDON—The Royal Aero Club Tuesday presented its gold medal to the Hon. Charles Stewart Rolls, who recently made a successful flight across the English channel from Dover to Calais and return.

NEW YORK—The new 1910 Trow business directory for Manhattan and the Bronx, and its companion volume, the directory for New York city, combining the five boroughs, are being distributed today. Both directories are larger this year than ever before.

READY TO NAME COMMITTEES.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Speaker Wadsworth of the Assembly says he will name the five assemblies to represent the lower house on the legislative investigating committee tonight.

Boston's streets where the city's money is being spent.

The fact that he has been known principally as a railroad engineer and on Panama canal work has given the impression that he has had no particular experience in city problems, but this is by no means true. During the past four years which he has spent in the Canal Zone he has handled some 13,000 workmen and had to provide for the housing and proper care of more than 50,000 men, women and children. He has been compelled to work out all the intricate problems of street, water and sanitary engineering.

The advocates of the new incinerator plant for Boston will find a warm supporter in Mr. Rourke, and one of the first things he will turn his attention to will be the problem of collecting and disposing of the city's garbage and ashes.

Mr. Rourke gives the impression of being a big man physically and professionally. He stands 6ft. 3in. and can talk engineering problems as fluently as his chief can talk politics, and he cannot help but make a decided impression upon all who come in contact with him. From the impression one gets at first meeting with the man it is not hard to guess that while he holds the position of superintendent of streets of Boston he and he alone will run the office and run it for the best interests of the taxpayers.

BATTLESHIPS CARRY YOUNG OFFICERS ON LONG EUROPEAN TRIP

ANNAPOLIS—The summer practice fleet, composed of the battleships Iowa (flagship), Indiana and Massachusetts, commanded by Capt. George R. Clark, with the brigade of midshipmen aboard, sailed from this port this week.

This cruise of about 10,000 miles is the first to European ports of the midshipmen since 1898. It will include Plymouth, Marseilles, Gibraltar, Funchal and Horta. Annapolis will be reached on the return trip about Aug. 29.

It is expected that Plymouth, Eng., will be reached about June 23. The fleet will stop there for a week and the midshipmen will be allowed leave of three days with permission to visit London. The midshipmen have been invited to dinner by the lord mayor, but it is not settled whether they will go to London in detachments or in a body.

NEW YORK MAYOR ENDS FRANCHISE TAX LITIGATIONS

Settlement Is Effected With the Metropolitan Railway Receivers for Payment of $3,750,000.

NEW YORK—Mayor Gaynor has just ended a long controversy by approving a settlement of the franchise tax suits against the Metropolitan Railway Company. The city is to receive $3,750,000 and litigation against 12 subsidiary companies of the Metropolitan will be discontinued.

This practically closes all the disputes with local corporations on the franchise tax questions. The mayor brought about recently a settlement of the Consolidated Gas Company's bills, which involved $17,000,000 in claims and the Third Avenue Railroad Company's bills of $1,800,000.

The Metropolitan receivers asked the mayor to take up the case, stating that they preferred to settle with him rather than to have the dispute drag along in the courts.

FIFTY THOUSAND SEE MYSTIC SHRINERS IN PARADE AT NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J.—Fifty thousand people saw more than 3000 members of the Mystic Shrine from Newark, Philadelphia, Trenton and Brooklyn in a street parade Tuesday night which was followed by the initiation of 200 candidates in the Krueger auditorium.

It was a dual occasion—the initiation and a welcome to Imperial Deputy Potentate W. Freeland Kendrick of Philadelphia. The visiting delegation, consisting of Lu Lu temple of Philadelphia, Kismet of Brooklyn and Crescent of Trenton, were received in the Market street station of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Many buildings were decorated. Mayor Haussling and other city officials reviewed the parade and were welcomed as guests in the auditorium.

RESERVE A GREAT PARK FOR CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont.—The entire eastern slope of the Rocky mountains from the international boundary northward to just above the 54th parallel is now reserved by the Dominion government. It will be administered with a view to the proper utilization and reproduction of the forest, the protection of the water supply of the prairie provinces and other related objects.

The area of the district is about 14,000 square miles, of which 4850 square miles has just been put under reserve for the first time. Adjoining this to the south is an area of 1400 square miles similarly reserved by the United States government.

The width of the Canadian strip set aside varies from 10 to 50 miles.

STOPS WEIGHING MEAT SKEWERS

NEW YORK—Clement J. Driscoll, chief of the bureau of weights and measures, summoned the representatives of most of the large wholesale packing firms doing business in this city before him Tuesday and warned them against the use of wooden "spreaders" and "skewers" in meat if they are weighed into the net amount. Mr. Driscoll informed the wholesalers that he had figured out that the retailers of the city had to pay last year for 587,662 pounds of these "spreaders" and "skewers," the cost falling on the consumer. He informed them that unless the practice of weighing the wood with the meat is discontinued by them he will prosecute them like any other user of false scales and weights.

The concert was given under the direction of Clement Lenon.

MORSE PUPILS IN RECITAL.

The vocal pupils of Frank E. Morse were heard in recital at Steinert hall Tuesday evening. Much interest was shown, owing to the success of certain pupils in concert of late, and a large audience was present. This was the second recital of the season.

"Nearly all the Violon-Garcia anecdotes," writes Leonard Liebling in the Musical Courier, "mentioned her vocal adaptations of Chopin mazurkas, but none of them remembered the famous songstress' duet arrangement of the Schubert-Liszt 'Soirees de Vienne.' It is the best of all her transcriptions."

The attraction at the Boston opera house next week is to be Fritz Schell's successful opera vehicle, "Mile. Modiste," not "King Dodo," as announced. Henry Blossom wrote the libretto of "Mile. Modiste" and the music is of Victor Herbert's best modern product.

MUD OF HARBOR GIVES UP RELICS

BOMBAY—An interesting find was made recently during excavations which have been going on at Kasara basin, Wari Bunder, in Bombay harbor. Two old cast iron cannon, five feet long, and apparently 12-pounders, were discovered at a depth of some 16 feet below the mud of the harbor bed. It is believed that they were ancient ship's guns. An old type of hand grenade was also dug up recently near the same spot.

WOODS IN STATE OF CONNECTICUT HELD AS MODEL

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—An object lesson is presented in what is probably the oldest "planted" forest in New England, located in West Stafford, Conn., about 12 miles from this city. It consists of about five acres of white and yellow pines, standing in straight rows, the trees towering to a height of 50 and 60 feet, and free from branches until nearly the very top is reached. No matter what direction one looks, the trees stand out in perfect lines and are from eight inches to 15 inches in diameter.

These trees were planted nearly 80 years ago by a man named Davis. Some of his descendants now own the grove, and they will reap the benefits of the planter's wisdom. The grove is an inspiration to men who own land suitable for tree planting, and many men who have strolled through the cathedral-like aisles have gone away determined that they would plant groves like it.

HARVARD'S BIPLANE WILL RECEIVE FIRST TRIAL EARLY FRIDAY

A trial of the aeroplane built by the Harvard Aeronautical Society will be made next Friday at 4 a. m. in Soldiers field, Cambridge. This early hour is selected that the experiment may be hampered by few spectators as possible.

Harvard I, is the name of the machine. J. V. Martin, manager of the society, will probably guide the first flight. He has recently been at Plum island, Newburyport, where he has had the advantage of learning from the experiments with the Burgess machine there.

The biplane is propelled by a 30-horsepower motor weighing 250 pounds. The total weight of the aeroplane is 400 pounds. The supporting spars are hollow, giving great strength at a minimum weight. A speed of 46 miles an hour is expected. The machine measures 26 feet from wing tip to wing tip and is 14 feet long.

ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER MASONS WELCOME NATHAN KINGSLEY

Large Attendance at Meeting and Banquet in Masonic Temple to Greet the General Grand High Priest on His First Visit to Massachusetts Since His Election.

The attendance of General Grand High Priest Nathan Kingsley of the General Royal Arch Chapter of the United States brought an assemblage of nearly 400 to the meeting of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Massachusetts at Masonic Temple Tuesday evening.

This is the first visit of Mr. Kingsley to this state since his election last November. He arrived Monday and will remain in the state until Friday. He comes from Austin, Minn., and is a member of the bench of the circuit court of that state.

A banquet was given in his honor at the Winter Place hotel Monday evening. Tuesday he visited the navy yard and other points of interest in the morning and was taken on an automobile trip through the park system in the afternoon. At 5 o'clock a luncheon was given

CONTEST IS IN VIEW FOR AUDITOR ON THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

The Republican state committee is now a little disturbed over the prospect of a contest for the place of state auditor on the Republican ticket next fall which seems probable from the announcement from Worcester made public today that former Senator Elmer C. Potter desires to be named to succeed Henry E. Turner of Malden, the present auditor.

According to the plans which have been in the making, E. P. Langtry, the Springfield newspaper publisher, was to have been given the place of auditor on the ticket, and it is well known that Mr. Langtry thinks he has waited about long enough for some good office and will not be called off.

With the retirement of Attorney-General Dana Malone of Greenfield, the western Massachusetts Republicans believe the auditorship should go to them as a geographical right and there are indications that geography will play a part in the make-up of the state ticket this fall. With Langtry on the ticket and Dist. Atty. James M. Swift of Fall River for attorney-general, two of the long neglected sections of the state would be taken care of and some longstanding contentions ended.

Washington despatches now state that Representative A. P. Gardner will come up for reelection next fall in spite of declarations that he would be forced to retire.

Mr. Gardner says that conditions in this state at present will not permit him to retire. If he should not run it is said there would be a hard fight between a number of candidates for the nomination.

Men familiar with Massachusetts politics believe in that event that the question of Senator Lodge's reelection would become involved and there would be an alignment of radical Republicans as opposed to conservative Republicans and that thus the way might be opened for a Democratic victory.

in his honor in the banquet hall of the temple.

Every one of the 78 Royal Arch chapters in the state was represented at the quarterly meeting of the Grand Chapter and at the reception of the General Grand High Priest which followed. Mr. Kingsley made a very impressive speech which dealt with the order and its progress.

Among those present was Past Grand High Priest Jethro C. Sanford of Colorado.

What Other Editors Are Saying

THE selected editorial comments today deal with the tariff and the proposal to establish an independent Tariff Board, also with the vote of $250,000 by Congress for tariff investigation:

NEW YORK SUN—Now the Payne tariff is as good a tariff as anybody had a right to expect from the Republican tariff plank of 1908. No downward revision was promised. It is yielding revenue. And the high cost of living is found in other countries as well as the United States, and the essential causes thereof are independent of the American tariff.

CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD—The House has voted to give the President the $250,000 he wants for the purpose of gathering information bearing on the tariff—of ascertaining relative costs of production here and abroad—but it has refused to authorize the creation of a "tariff board" of independent status or power. If we can't have a tariff board with a dignified name, definite place, appropriate functions, we must perforce content ourselves, for the present, with "persons employed by the President" and the money grudgingly voted to cover the expense of their labors in foreign fields. The essential things is to get the facts.

BUFFALO COMMERCIAL—The democratic opposition to the Taft tariff board plan is based on the not very serious objection that the board is to report to the President and not to Congress. The plan secures authentic information concerning the comparative production cost at home and abroad which the President is not at all likely to withhold from Congress.

MILWAUKEE FREE PRESS—The tariff board for which President Taft has been so strenuously insisting, with the large additional means now to be placed at its disposal, marks an important step in the movement for a tariff, such as Germany has and under which it has become in a comparatively few years a great industrial nation.

NEW YORK PRESS—If, after they have the facts clearly presented for their understanding, the voters nevertheless want to elect members of Congress who will greatly modify, or even wipe out, the tariff, nobody can stop them; nobody can ward off the consequences until the voters themselves, suffering from their mistake, hasten, as they have done before, to correct it.

In deciding as to the particular brand of canned fruit likely to be the best, due weight should be given to the special advantages of the locality of production. California is particularly favored as a fruit-growing country, and perfect fruit can always be had in abundance. Should you try Lusk's California canned fruits known by the Bear Brand you'll find not only great excellence, but a generous consideration for the consumer.

Any food preparation that makes housekeeping easier without detracting from the nutritious value or characteristic flavor of the materials used, or adding to the ultimate cost of ordinary culinary purposes is worthy of adoption in all households. This can be said of Dart's Pulverized Peas and Beans, which has made possible the use of these excellent legumes as an everyday and easily prepared article of diet, especially in the form of soup.

MONITOR IS CALLED A NEW COMMANDING ADVERTISING MEDIUM

Trade Journal Declares Free
Situation Pages of Christian Science Paper Have Proved Great Success.

"ACME OF SERVICE"

Only publishers who have faced the problem of building up a newspaper know how hard it is to attain popularity and financial success. There is seldom anything spontaneous about the success of the new newspaper.

The Christian Science Monitor of Boston fulfills a conspicuous exception to the general rule, says the Fourth Estate.

In less than two years it has won large circulation and become one of the commanding advertising mediums in its field. It has succeeded in demonstrating several new principles; among other things, that it is unnecessary for news to come by cable before it can be labeled news. Through a staff of world-wide scope it gathers a vast amount of special material and photographs from which its editors construct a daily foreign page of worth and importance; in its sporting news it shuns prizefighting and professional horseracing, but devotes careful attention to athletics in all of the healthier and higher forms.

In keeping with the best newspaper traditions of Boston, it has at the same time succeeded in shunning altogether certain forms of news without sacrificing popularity.

At the present time The Monitor is running daily two or more pages of free situations and help wanted advertisements from readers in every section of the United States, and this gratuitous service is proving to be one of the year's biggest successes in the Boston newspaper field. It is bringing employment to the worthy reader who needs it and placing with employers the type of men they need in their business—these two essentials constituting the acme of service a journal can render to its clientele.

It is noticeable that in its weekday and Saturday editions The Monitor is carrying the advertising of many New York firms, not only of the mail order sort, but of the big merchant houses, which consider it a paying investment to educate the Bostonian to come down to New York on shopping tours of the metropolitan stores.

NEWS OF THE REALTY MARKET

The Boston Real Estate Exchange will soon appoint a committee to look into the subject of holding in Boston a real estate exposition similar to that which was recently held in Madison Square Garden, New York. The directors of the exchange held their usual monthly meeting Tuesday and heard a report on the proposition by Frederick H. Viaux, secretary-treasurer of the exchange, who attended the New York exposition and was favorably impressed with its educational and other features. Mr. Viaux thinks that such an exhibition held in this city would prove highly educational and interesting to builders not only of homes in the many available residential districts in and about Boston, but also of modern office buildings.

The holding in this city of a real estate exposition could also be used to familiarize the people with our harbor facilities and with the varied residential attractions of Boston and its beautiful suburbs, to call attention to modern concrete, terra cotta and other fireproof building materials, and to encourage the erection of the small dwelling house of moderate cost.

The committee to be appointed will report at a future meeting of the directors. The idea of the promoters will be to conduct the exposition on educational lines, giving prominence not only to suburban and country development, but to an exhibition of all kinds of building materials, showing the process of their manufacture; also the best methods of concrete and cement construction of houses and bungalows, the best ideas in architecture for low-cost houses and a general exhibition of heating apparatus, plumbing materials, lighting and ventilation; landscape gardening, portable houses, building cement, heaters, interior decorations, waterproofing materials, furniture, tapestry, brick and ornaments, hollow ties, concrete blocks and everything which goes into the building of homes and other structures.

LATE TRANSACTIONS.

One of the most important auction sales of wharf property that has taken place in East Boston in a long time is that in which the city of Boston has sold to the Standard Oil Company the realty at 492 to 494 Chelsea street. The auctioneer was James W. Mogan and the price paid was $20,100, while the assessed value was $12,700. It adjoins the property of the Standard Oil Company and has been used for storage purposes by the street department. It comprises frame buildings with 15,000 square feet of solid land and 107,000 square feet of flats.

The land is taxed for $7500, there is $4000 on the buildings and the remainder on machinery. The movable materials, such as machinery, etc., were not included in the transfer.

A lot of 5694 square feet of land on Audubon road, near Beacon street, Back Bay, has been sold by George W. Hurd to George E. Rogers. It is assessed for $14,200.

Jonathan B. L. Bartlett has purchased the Hotel Humboldt, at 40 Holborn street, Roxbury, a three-story brick structure, containing six suites and occupying 5400 square feet of land. It is taxed for $17,200, of which $2200 is on the land.

Another sale in Roxbury is that whereby Ellen S. Eldredge and others have sold to Jeanette M. Epstein 8207 sq. ft., rated at 35 cents per foot, on Brookledge street, near Humboldt avenue, and to Minnie Nichols another lot, containing 8000 feet, in the same locality. Edward H. Eldredge & Co. were the brokers in these two sales, which are the first in anticipation of the expiration of restrictions, and numerous sales are expected to follow. The two lots just sold will be improved with two-family houses.

At Jamaica Plain, Ralph B. Williams and Moses Williams, trustees, have sold to Carl G. Hampe a lot on Dunster road, containing 4720 feet. Dunster road is a new street through the old Moses Williams estate on Center street, near Holbrook, and Eliot street. Mr. Hampe, who buys for improvement, was represented by Robert T. Fowler, and the Williams estate by Joseph Balch. The Chapin Farm Agency has sold for the owner, Alfred Swanson, his farm situated on the Winchester road in the town of Warwick, Franklin county, comprising 44 acres of land, a farmhouse containing eight rooms, a commodious barn and numerous outbuildings, an apple orchard, tract of woodland and a sugar orchard with sugar house, evaporator and complete fixtures for the manufacture of maple sugar and syrup. The estate was sold to Mrs. Delia C. F. Morey of Spencer, who has already taken possession and has also bought the complete stock of cattle, horses, vehicles, machinery and tools.

GROWTH OF VALUES IN BEVERLY.
Really on Cabot street, Beverly, has proved one of the most attractive investments possible to its owners and proved a splendid dividend producer. Recently some local interests well versed in values were talking the changes in values on Cabot street and the returns that some of these properties produced. All along the street from Railroad avenue to Pond street these values have increased and now property between those streets on Cabot street is assessed at the rate of $150 per square foot.

What is now known as the Hill property on Cabot street, the old stone building, sold years ago for $1700, but is now assessed for that amount on the building alone, and the land, 2225 feet, is assessed for $3350. It is the same way with other properties along the street and the asking prices are even higher than the valuation which the assessors have made.

It is said that the Clark property at the corner of Cabot and Hale street is one of the best dividend payers in the city. It is assessed on the Cabot street land for $1.50 a foot, and the total valuation is something like $28,000; it is also one of the best rented properties in the city, bringing in, it is said, on Cabot street like $4500 per year. Property on Cabot street is today in good demand, and with the development of the business section will continue to grow in value with the passing of the years. The choosing by President Taft of Beverly as the summer capital has had a great deal to do with its realty growth.

BUNGALOW IS IDEAL HOME.

The bungalow is today probably one of the most popular types of dwelling, whether it be for summer use or for all-the-year-round occupancy, although the first is generally associated with the bungalow. But the type is being modified to such an extent nowadays that many houses called "bungalows" are occupied by their owners during all seasons and with decided comfort at all times.

A lecture delivered by O. R. Parry, architect, at the recent real estate exposition held in Madison Square Garden, New York, is interesting and gives many useful hints to those contemplating the erection of a bungalow.

Mr. Parry said: "For the popular acceptance of the bungalow there are many reasons worthy of note, such as the absence of stairs, coziness, exemplifying the home life for which one yearns at some stage of our existence, and economy in maintenance. The bungalow likewise largely contributes toward the possible solution of the servant problem, for an easy situation gives greater contentment, therefore increased likelihood of retaining servants."

"The bungalow, from its very nature, is susceptible to economical planning. The compactness of general layout, simplicity of design, etc., resulting in a home economical to maintain and comfortable to occupy."

"The bungalow and bungalow type residence better fulfill the requirements of a home for all classes than any other character of building. For instance, one accustomed to every luxury of life and the methods of society would and could not be satisfied in the modest or medium sized house, resulting only in a curtailment of comforts without recompense in providing a desirable counterbalancing feature."

"The bungalow opens a field rich in benefits, and should in time provide an outlet for overcrowded tenements. With cheap trolley fare and increased building of electric roads, much territory now realizing a poor investment as farmland should be open for the development of bungalow colonies."

"These conditions have resulted in warranting more superior construction than formerly was thought necessary or advisable, while the consideration, from an architectural standpoint, has also undergone a radical change. No longer must an endeavor be made to adhere to the rustic log, fieldstone, shingle or similar treatment, as various styles of architecture applicable to the customary residence of two or more stories can be as appropriately applied to the new bungalow."

"It does not necessarily follow that the true bungalow (which, by the way, is described in the dictionary as a single storied house, lightly built and generally surrounded by a veranda) will cease to be erected, but rather that a new structure containing the conveniences, advanced treatment and permanent construction has appeared."

"The term bungalow should still be permissible as applying to these new conditions, provided the rooms remain in one story, or, at most, that small use be made of the space in the roof. When ample ceiling height is obtained above the main floor, then it would, perhaps, be better to refer to such buildings as of a bungalow type residence."

NORFOLK MEETING BY UNITARIANS

The Norfolk conference of Unitarian churches opened its summer meeting at the Wollaston Unitarian church in Quincy at 10 a. m. today. President George K. Clark presided, and the Rev. A. W. Littlefield of Brookline spoke on "The Present Uses of the Church." A discussion opened by S. Herbert Howe of Marlboro was followed by a devotional service conducted by the Rev. Charles W. Casson of Dorchester.

The afternoon session will include a praise service conducted by the Rev. E. C. Butler of Quincy, followed by a roll call of churches, after which the Rev. E. S. Meredith of West Roxbury will speak on Theodore Parker, and the Rev. C. F. Dole of Jamaica Plain on "Why our churches should work for Temperance."

W. D. CRUM APPOINTED MINISTER.

WASHINGTON—The President has sent to the Senate the nomination of William D. Crum of Charleston, S. C., to be minister to Liberia.

ter to refer to such buildings as of a bungalow type residence.

"It is generally more economical to have a home built on the bungalow type, utilizing the space in the roof for a den, billiard room, extra bedroom, servants' accommodations, nursery, play, store or children's rooms, than to erect the customary high country house, as the point to be especially striven for is simplicity of design, thus materially reducing the labor, size of materials, necessary cellar excavations, etc."

"This type of structure should be within reach of people in all stations of life, and especially appeal to those in our large cities, where the noise and bustle instill a desire for the country with its freshness and pure air."

"The suburban bungalow is practically unlimited as a home for all in any suburb, season or climate. It may be a modest affair, located on a small shadeless lot, or a magnificent bungalow type residence or a well-kept estate, with old shade trees, formal and informal gardens, stables, entrance lodge, summer and ice houses, etc."

"The treatment may be an intimation of almost any style of architecture, though originally in this country the development of the bungalow was largely a matter of the owner's ideas and wants, with the builders' execution; this resulted in the early so-called California type. The bungalow involving a limited expenditure in comparison with the larger class of buildings and objection to a corresponding increased fee for the architect, has retarded developments, as few persons have adopted the subject as a hobby."

"The inception of the bungalow being identified with moderate cost, it is small wonder this feature continues to be rather universally shared to the present time. Happily, with the erection of numerous expensive bungalows in recent years, this idea is vanishing, with correspondingly much in store for the future."

"In planning the bungalow, particular attention should be given to air space over the ground floor, possibilities of future enlargement, etc. The design should be left to one's architect, after expressing the general style and character of structure desired, and he should not be too largely hampered if the best results are to be obtained. In California the bungalow roof is customarily fairly flat, with considerable projection beyond the wall line, and in India, as well as frequently in England, the roof is of thatch. Both the shingles and thatch are pleasing in effect, but the slope of the roof for shingles in a climate subject to beating rains and snow must be greater than in California, while the thatch roof seems to be entirely at variance with such a climate."

PROPOSE STONE STAND FOR BAND

A memorial of stone to replace the present wooden band stand on the Common is proposed by the special committee of the city council on the expenditure of the Parkman fund income as an appropriate manner in which to use a part of this year's income. Representatives of the art and music commissions and Supt. D. Henry Sullivan of the public grounds department held a conference with the committee late Tuesday afternoon, and as a result an order will be introduced at the next meeting of the city council.

Superintendent Sullivan called attention to the fact that only $10,000 from the $70,000 authorized last year for irrigation work had been spent.

HOUSE NOW EXPECTS POSTAL SAVINGS BANK BILL VOTE THURSDAY

WASHINGTON—The postal savings bank bill now before the House will be taken up at 11 a. m. tomorrow for debate, limited to eight hours. This will bring the measure to a vote in the House at 6 p. m., when it is expected to pass.

The document will stand as it is in the House, as a rule was adopted Tuesday cutting off all possibility of amendment. This rule, which also limited the debate on the bill to eight hours, was brought in by Chairman Dalzell of the rules committee immediately after the railroad bill had been sent to conference.

The vote on its adoption was 160 to 139, all but 10 of the insurgent Republicans having voted with their party.

The 10 insurgents who voted against the rule were Messrs Carey, Cooper, Nelson and Lenroot of Wisconsin, Davis and Lindbergh of Minnesota, Grannis of

Mr. Pinchot Is Fighting Lands Withdrawal Bill

Former Forester Pinchot is in Washington today for the avowed purpose of exerting his influence to prevent, if possible, the passage by the Senate of the administration bill to permit the President to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes.

This action was taken as the result of an interview he had with Senator Smoot, who is in charge of the measure, in which the former forester sought the adoption of an amendment striking out the provision which would permit of the exploration and purchase of withdrawn lands, under the mining laws.

The thanks of Mrs. Pittman for what the Senate and the President have done for her son, captured by the Nicaraguan government forces while fighting with the revolutionists, were received by Senator Lodge Tuesday and presented by him.

Mr. Gardner Declares He Will Run for Reelection

Congressman A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts declared positively Tuesday that he would stand for another term in Congress from the Essex district. This he said while actively participating in the excitement on the floor of the House over the Lenroot resolution and the adoption of the Weeks resolution providing for a special rule for the postal savings bank bill.

In the Senate Tuesday five hours were occupied with criticism of the administration of the public land laws in connection with the consideration of the public land withdrawal bills. The bill was under consideration when the Senate adjourned.

COST OF TRAVELING HOME FOR OFFICERS IN NAVY IS REFUSED

Navy officers are not entitled to transportation expenses when ordered to their homes on leave, according to a decision just made at Washington affecting Assistant Naval Constructor Alva B. Court of the Boston navy yard, and the announcement has caused an unusual stir in naval circles. Unless Congress will give relief, it will affect several hundred naval officers and cause them to be ordered to refund to the treasury sums ranging from $100 to $800.

Mr. Court, who on Tuesday received his degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was two years ago ordered to his home in Houston, Tex., from Boston, and later back again. Pay Director C. W. Littlefield of the Boston navy yard paid his transportation claim of $315.04. The comptroller's office now orders that this amount of money be collected from the naval constructor's pay.

It is stated at the Boston navy yard that Secretary of the Navy George von L. Meyer will have his attention called to the situation.

ALL PUBLIC SCHOOLS THROUGHOUT NATION TO HONOR FLAG DAY

School children throughout the United States will on Tuesday hold exercises in honor of flag day, the anniversary of the adoption on June 14, 1776, of a national emblem by the Continental Congress in Philadelphia. Patriotic bodies and G. A. R. posts will hold meetings and listen to eminent speakers.

In Boston the children of the public schools will meet in their class rooms in the morning, and in the afternoon will assemble in the halls attached to their schools and sing patriotic airs. Teachers and others will speak on the respect each child should have for the flag. It will be pointed out to them that they should never pass under "Old Glory" without tipping their hats or saluting it in a fashion showing their respect for it.

Every person who lives in and about Boston is urged by the patriotic organizations to fling "Old Glory" to the breeze on Tuesday from the windows of his home.

MAN WHO FOILED BIG SUGAR FRAUD TO GET A MILLION

WASHINGTON—Richard Parr, deputy collector of customs of the port of New York, who unearthed the frauds in the American Sugar Refining Company which resulted in the paying into the United States treasury the sum of $2,135,486, according to a decision just handed down by Attorney-General Wickersham, can recover approximately $1,000,000, the amount of his moiety claim against the government for information given against the sugar trust.

The statutes regulating such awards provide that the informant shall receive "not exceeding in amount one half of the net proceeds."

The claim of Mr. Parr was approved by Collector of the Port William Loeb, Jr., last December, after investigation into the justice of it by Harrison Osborne, solicitor of the customs. Mr. Parr on Nov. 20, 1907, discovered a steel spring used by the sugar company's checkers to influence the weight of sugar adversely, thus defrauding the government of thousands of dollars in customs duties.

MAINE SENATORSHIP CLAIMING ONLY TWO AVOWED CANDIDATES

BANGOR, Me.—The United States senatorial contest, although temporarily in abeyance, in view of the near approach of the state and county conventions, is still in evidence, particularly in eastern and central Maine. Although numerous candidates have been mentioned, Judge Frederick A. Powers of Houlton and former Governor William T. Cobb of Rockland are as yet the only openly avowed candidates. Governor Cobb was long a staunch supporter of United States Senator Hale.

There is a rumor to the effect that the so-called Dingley-Ricker faction is considering a scheme whereby Mr. Cobb is to have Senator Frye's seat, leaving the field clear for Mr. Powers to succeed Senator Hale. It has been generally understood that Charles Sumner Cook, the Portland lawyer, has been grooming for Mr. Frye's place, but that might be easily declared off in the interests of harmony and the success of the Republican party at the polls next September—for there is a very real danger, in the opinion of many of the party leaders, that the Democrats may have political wisdom enough to smother their differences and elect a majority of the next Legislature—or at least enough to make trouble in case of a Republican factional fight being carried to the last ditch.

"I don't care to make any detailed statement as to my views upon all the great national issues," said Mr. Cobb. "I am simply a Republican, standing upon the party's platform of principles."

Mr. Cobb speaks in terms of high appreciation of Mr. Hale's services in a national sense and in behalf of Maine. "I don't know of anything that Senator Hale has done that he should not have done, nor of anything that he failed to do for his state that he should have done."

As to his prospects of success in the canvass for senatorial honors, Mr. Cobb says that he feels much encouraged by what he has seen and heard. He has been into Cumberland, Androscoggin and other counties and found things promising. He will not, as a matter of courtesy, go into Aroostook county, the home of Judge Powers.

DENIES ILLEGAL INFLUENCE.

WASHINGTON—Gov. Walter E. Clark of Alaska, a witness before the Senate judiciary committee, which is hearing protests against the confirmation of John Rustgard and Herbert L. Faulkner to be United States attorney and marshal, respectively, for Alaska, testified to the good character of the new appointees and denied that the nominations had been dictated by men friendly to the Guggenheim-Morgan interests.

FASHIONS AND

USES FOR CHIFFON SCARFS A Chic Linen Effect PARIS FALL FO
How the surplus may be made into dainty things.

MANY girls by gift or purchase get an accumulation of chiffon scarfs for which they apparently have little use. Some of these can be turned to account for motoring, as dusty roads work havoc with veils even when they are washable, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

A square chiffon shawl, by the way, can be made to do duty as a veil by those who do not automobile often enough to buy a regular motor veil.

To adjust it, put it on so that it falls evenly around the hat, front and back, then gather the fold back from front and pin neatly into the nape of neck with long veil pin, thus holding the back lengths in place.

Another use for the scarf is to arrange a light wrap of some sort.

Turn up the ends of scarf on wrong side to make a point. Overcast seams together to lie flat. On end of point can be put a silk tassel, and on the double thicknesses thus afforded may be set a tiny pocket of silk or of several thicknesses of chiffon. This can be edged with a fringe of narrow lace or the edges can be buttonholed to material in a harmonizing color.

One girl turned a chiffon scarf of pale green with border of gilt into a dainty separate guimpe with shirred sleeves to be worn as a change with a black evening frock.

Old party or house gowns can be given quite an air by using a handsome long scarf as drapery. A pretty and simple fichu arrangement held at waist line with small rosettes on each side will quite transform a little cashmere shirtwaist gown in delicate colors. The neck may be cut out and a pointed yoke of net inserted with the scarf brought to meet it on both sides.

One of the imported frocks of the season had a scarf drapery well adapted to renovations. It was brought over the shoulders so that it fell at equal distances front and back. The fulness was laid in five flat plaits, the outer ones falling loosely over the sleeve.

These plaits were held at back by a small cabochon of pearls such as are used in millinery. It was placed just a little below the shoulder blade so that the scarf ends hung straight from it. In front the plaits were narrowed in to waist line, where they were held by a larger cabochon, the ends of scarf hanging straight from it.

The scarf, both front and back, was finished with a deep silk fringe the same shade. This could easily be added to the ordinary scarf by cutting equal lengths of embroidery silk and tying them through a buttonholed edge of same silk.

Another use for a scarf that has seen its best days but washes nicely is to turn it into a work bag to hold delicate bits of embroidery. The ends of the scarf are sewed together and the strip folded in two lengthwise.

A slit six inches long is made along the top of this fold and bound with narrow satin ribbon. Both edges of scarf are then gathered and drawn up into a tight circle on each side of the bag. The fulness is concealed by button molds covered with silk or by large gilt buttons.

Ribbons are sewed to each end of slit to hang the bag or to slip over the arm when carried. Tiny rosettes hide the joining.

Plank Cooking Secret Is Revealed

CAMPERS first found the delight of plank cooking and on returning to town retained their mode of cookery, and thus it became introduced to the home kitchen, and when once adopted by hotels and restaurants became a fashionable fad, says the London Queen.

Many London restaurants make a specialty of plank cookery, and one firm of manufacturers has devoted itself to the manufacture of planks from specially prepared woods.

The fashion has much to commend it, for in large establishments wooden planks considerably reduce the cost of breakages and replatings. On this account and yet more by reason of the improved flavor, plank cookery is worthy of a trial in a small home.

The planks should be planed oak from one inch to one and a half inches in thickness and varying in size according to the food to be cooked on them and according to the size of the oven, and gauded out in grooves like a gravy dish or bacon dish when required for fat meat or thick portions of meat. It is well to have separate planks for meat and fish. In large establishments distinction is made between planks used for meat, poultry and game, and likewise for fresh and dried fish.

The plank must first be scrubbed and dried in the open air, and then it is ready for use. When required for service a tablespoonful of best olive oil, butter or sweet dripping must be rubbed with a cloth into the upper surface of the plank. The plank must be placed in a hot oven or under the broiler of a gas stove and when it begins to give out a pale blue smoke the meat or fish can be placed on it.

Let the food be brushed over with olive oil or oiled butter or dripping and seasoned with a little pepper, but no salt.

Allow the usual time for the baking or grilling, but turn the food frequently while it is cooking so that it may be well permeated by the acid of the gas which is formed between the plank and food.

When the food is nearly cooked make a border of mashed potatoes around the edge of the plank and return it to the oven until the border is nicely browned. Arrange grilled tomatoes, fried onions, boiled eggs, beans, artichokes, young carrots, brussels sprouts or cauliflower sprigs according to fancy with in the potato border. Place the plank on a dish or special tray and serve it.

The planks must never be washed. As soon as they are removed from the dining table they must be wiped clean and dried with the cloth used in greasing the plank and each should be placed in a linen bag and hung up until next required.

Placing of the Buttons

THE smallest buttons are now placed in rows of five, seven or even more in the most unexpected places on some of the newest frock and linen costumes, says the Philadelphia North American.

To say that we now use buttons as trimming is, in itself, not enough to convey the desired impression. They are used in numbers, in curious places and in odd combinations. There may be large chintz-covered or embroidered buttons on a garment, but this is not proof that small steel ones will not appear in nearby rows as an added touch. Huge braided discs that serve as a decoration are accompanied by little ball buttons of brass in rows of nine.

Just across the girdle at the back of the waist a French customer has placed a curved row of gilt ball buttons on a dark blue costume. Another model shows a similar row along the top edge of the cuffs, running round the arm, and a third, by the use of tiny buttonholes in the front of a high bolero, has been fastened to the yoke by a row of small silk-covered buttons.

Tulle in Place of Veil

Wisps of tulle drawn down from the hat crown round the throat and tied in front in a huge, soft bow are light, soft and becoming, and in many instances take the place of the veil over the face.

New Cut for Coats

Many of the new coats have the fronts cut without a break at the waist line; the back, however, is pulled a trifle at the waist line, and pulled into a satin or leather belt.

Khaki Skirts Popular

Natural colored khaki skirts, made with seven gores, habit back and buttoned down the front in a straight line are most practical and popular.

DAINTY NEW GOWN.

LINEN gowns are made most attractive this season trimmed with bands of contrasting color. This one is white and the bands are buff, and the effect is exceedingly chic.

Buff linen banded with white would be pretty, however; blue with white is much liked, and rose color with white is greatly in vogue; indeed, any combination that may be liked can be substituted for this one.

The blouse is very new and very smart, closed invisibly at the left of the front, and the skirt includes the short-pointed overskirt that is one of the very latest developments.

It can be made as illustrated or worn with a belt as preferred, also it can be made longer if a more dressy gown is wanted.

The blouse pattern, No. 6621, and the skirt pattern, No. 6610, can be obtained at any May Manton agency.

Bathing Suit Colors

Hosiery matches one's bathing suit in color. Either the white or black slippers or shoes are worn; if the suit is trimmed with black, that is the color of footwear selected.

PARIS FALL FO

(Copyright by Mariette Loeb, 1910.)

PARIS—The heaviest Scotch tweeds and fish worsteds will compose the coat of next season; the roughest tweeds will not be considered too much line looking for women's suits when the winter comes again.

Real Scotch mixtures will be fashionable; true Scottish colorings, i. e., pepper and salt, grey woven with reds, yellows and blues, all mixed into one heather color, will be seen next fall.

Gray will be a leading color and reds will be in full swing (after a lengthy disappearance); indeed it is expected that dull and brightest scarlets for both suits and dress will be very fashionable the coming autumn.

Short jackets to suits will of course lose these will be extensively braided in military fashion, braid "frogs" and barrel buttons being used all across the front.

Suits of bright scarlet serge, in its heavy form, will be made and trimmed in this fashion and flat furs, such as astrachan, will also form hem, collar and cuffs to the winter suit.

Fireplace Gives

FROM the aborigines' fire on a flat rock to steps in the development of the fireplace of today have been few and far between. The crude device smoked the huts, and our fireplaces often smoke our homes, says the Los Angeles Herald.

Poets have sung of the ideal fireplace—that warms you and is a pleasure to behold; that extends a cheerful welcome to the guest and is a delight to dream before—a fireplace that will make the poorest hut as pleasant as a palace.

However, ideal fireplaces surrounded by frames can and have been built, the poet's so realized, and all objectionable features eliminated.

The perfect open fire must diffuse and reflect the maximum of heat from a given amount of fuel without the escape of smoke or gases in the room to be heated, and at the same time radiate uniformly.

Large sums of money are often spent on a mantel or frame and the fireplace itself is left to the mercy of some one who does not understand its proper proportions and construction.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

The bag for dusters would make an inexpensive little present to give a bride who is going housekeeping. It is ecrus scrim, worked in cross stitch in dark blue and green cotton, and blue tassels and cord handle, says the New Haven (Conn.) Times Leader.

A pretty lampshade is of cretonne, made of a wire frame, and trimmed with bead fringe. This wide use of cretonne is not the least attractive decoration of the summer house, since its lightness and brightness of the coloring cannot fail to give a cool, summery effect.

Dainty embroidered linen, having a charming bag in one side, where jewels are to be kept, at a bag of sachet in the other side, and tied through the center like a bow with a dainty piece of ribbon, makes quite a novel gift. It can be worn inside the waist or placed in one's kerchief box.

The stems of party flowers will not injure the delicate party frock if they are encased in little tubelike cover, made for that purpose, of oil silk. These covers have been made of chiffon, but that is not impervious to water, and tinfoil in which stems usually are wrapped will itself make a discoloration on the gown.

Costly Shoes for Baby Princess

Queen Wilhelmina's baby, heir apparent to the throne of Holland, is the most fortunate royal youngster in the world in the matter of shoes to cover her little pink toes. An American firm has just made several pairs for her; one out of a piece of goods from the Queen's wedding gown, one of cloth of gold, another of cloth of silver and still another of the very finest patent calf with cloth of silver copping. Beautiful silks and brocaded satins that cost $100 a yard were used.

One pair in particular is noteworthy. It is tiny pair of carriage boots in exact miniature, a woman's boot and made of satin brocade, ecrus and mauve with a border of pure white and white satin bows. Each style of shoe is made in three colors, white, pink and blue.

Pearl Hatpins in Vogue

Imitation pearl hat pins are enjoying an enormous vogue.

A unique pin has two rather large pearl beads connected with a long festooned pearl chain which is caught in the hair with a small hairpin.

Another pin that is especially for wear with a lingerie hat is an openwork design in white enamel—simulating Irish crochet. This is set with a bright silver band.

There is also a large assortment of bugs and odd-shaped flies in the luminous metal. The come in bright colors and are realistic indeed when set in a flower turban.

Bracelets Fashionable

Bracelets are being clasped over the sleeves of tailored satin coats, and are being worn in profusion with the fashionable short sleeve.

White Canvas Gibson Tie

Very popular is the white canvas Gibson tie. It promises to be one of the most comfortable styles of footwear this summer.

Cluny Used in Neckwear

So popular has cluny become that it appears even on the finest pieces of neckwear.

THE HOUSEHOLD

CAST IN DRESS

We shall see people carrying muffs and wearing hats composed of fur that is the same as that on their suits, and even the popular priced suits will be trimmed with fur of less expensive or "manufactured" kind of course.

Small, round, close fitting hats, composed of velvet in Paisley designs and colorings, will be extensively used; in fact fancy velvets will play an important part in headwear after the summer has passed.

Short sleeves will no doubt continue to be worn even after the summer is over, which goes to show that there will again be a demand for long gloves.

The most popular silk bids to be taffeta, and the new designs will be of the Paisley, also of such kinds that remind one of the old brocades.

For evening wear we shall see soft silks, which will, however, be in the old-fashioned brocade designs, and an important note is that much gold trimming, braiding, etc., will be used for evening wear and "veiled" effects will continue fashionable during the autumn.

Room Cheerful Look

The throat of the chimney is much too large. This was originally necessary for the accommodation of the chimney sweep; and the natural consequence was that all of the warm air which should have warmed the room went up the chimney.

The brick fireplace is far more artistic than the old stock mantel with its hideous accompaniment of mottled tile. However, brick has the great disadvantage of being almost impossible to keep clean, and as even a well regulated fireplace may sometimes smoke, and as ashes and dust will gather, this is truly a drawback.

The most beautiful effects may be obtained by using tile. These tiles are made in every conceivable shape and size, as well as every possible color.

For the bedroom or the "colonial room" we have the soft, satin-finished creams and whites, or the dainty delicately glazed tiles.

Any of these tiles may be washed just as you would wash any piece of porcelain, with soap and water.

The heart of the home, as one admirer has called the fireplace, should give character to the whole room.

Beads Made of Wood

A curious departure from the scintillating glass forms are the wooden beads that are in either natural color or any shade that is delightfully barbaric in its intensity. The texture of the wood insures a lack of luster that hurts one's esthetic feelings.

These wooden beads are strung on coarse thread or string and are used for forming a necklace for a hat or for draping the eastern turban of coarse net.

Tunics are edged with wooden beads dyed to match the color of the gown, and on net, veils or chiffon the colored forms are decidedly effective.

Belts of raffia are studded with colored wooden beads, while handbags, linen buckles and fancy clasps are but a few of the possibilities hinted to the clever ones.

India Print for Trimming

Blue and white India print cut into bias strips of varying width makes an excellent trimming for a child's dress. Here is something unique and yet beautiful, that will not fade and is ideal for a little girl.

India print is an altogether desirable and durable stuff in color and quality, and can be used on fine or coarse white linen without the least danger of the colors spreading into the white surface.

Buttons covered with the print will add style, and then, too, the end of material you have left will do for a band round the dark blue or white dress-hat.

Shirred Skirt Feature

A feature of the shirred skirt is that it can be let down and fashioned in straight length later on. At present many hesitate to have a good material made into these skirts, thinking the style will soon change. It may and it may not, but remains to be seen, but the chances are that these skirts will be worn throughout the summer.

There are hundreds of modish ways to gather the skirt and hold it to the underskirt. It is useless to attempt it with textiles that will not drape gracefully.

Ebony and Gold Fans

In black and black and gold there are some fascinating examples of the fan maker's art, the ebony or gold sequins forming a variety of intricate patterns.

Coat Collars of Linen

Very dainty are the coat collars of linen with the buttonhole scalloped edge. The collars with insets of baby Irish are especially attractive.

Piping in White

Woven piping in white and color in combination is an exceedingly neat finish for children's wash dresses or morning dresses for children or grown-ups.

Yokes of Net in Use

Yokes of net on which are insets of Irish crochet cleverly applied are seen in some of the spring and summer gowns.

Cleaning Velvet Collars

Solled velvet collars may be cleaned by scraping a little pipe clay or French chalk over them, then brushing off with a stiff brush.

Metal and Glass Sets for Desks

LARGE and ornate are the new desk sets for women and men. For the latter they are elaborately executed and of bright materials that a few years ago would have been considered unsuitable, says the Philadelphia Star.

A combination of metals, or metal and glass, is the characteristic of these new designs. One beautiful desk equipment for a library seen recently was of green shaded glass overcast with a filigree of brass so fine it looks like gold. Most of the work is done by hand, and the cost is considerable.

Rarely does one see a small set for what was known a few years ago as a "lady's" desk. Writing tables having taken the place to a large extent of the sloping top desks formerly affected greater space is given for display, and certainly it is utilized more.

A lacquered brass, entirely plain but extremely large, is shown among the newest sets. Brass, indeed, is the favorite metal, although for men's business desks there are some striking effects in copper, hand wrought.

A serviceable and artistic design is plain, highly polished brass with inlay of copper, the two metals combining admirably.

Decoration Hints

Don't select a large pattern for a small room, for it will be out of proportion and decrease its size. In a place of this kind choose something small and dainty and the charm will be enhanced.

Don't put heavy tones in dark or medium light rooms, no matter how much you like them.

Don't use a striped paper in a place with a high ceiling. A room of that description should have a figured side wall with a pattern of generous proportions, if the space admits of that treatment. The same advice applies to materials.

Don't use a carpet or rug that does not tone in with the walls. Good decoration should start from the floor up. If the rug is green, for instance, the walls could be a tone or two lighter, thus making a gradual shading which is in good taste and harmonious.

Care of Sewing Machine

In many homes the sewing machine is a much abused servant. It is allowed to become clogged with dust and to suffer from lack of proper oiling. It is allowed to stand before windows on damp days, often with polished parts of the machine exposed to the dust.

If the machine is gummed with oil go over it with kerosene and let it stand a few minutes until the kerosene cuts the gummed oil, then wipe with a soft cloth devoid of lint. A small brush with stiff bristles is excellent to use. It will dislodge the dirt, and a long-handled crocheting needle is useful in cleaning the crevices which are often filled with accumulated dust.

Removing Grease

If you have spilled grease upon the kitchen floor pour enough kerosene on the spots to cover them, and in a half hour scrub with strong soap suds with a tablespoonful of borax to the gallon and the spot will be gone for good and not reappear later as when kerosene is not used.

Butter generally some thin slices of light, stale bread. Place a layer of rubarb in an earthen baking dish, sprinkle lightly with sugar, cover with bread slices, another layer of fruit, sugar and bread, until the dish is full, with bread on top. Pour over one cup of water and cover tightly with a plate, and bake in the oven for half an hour or more. Serve hot or cold with sugar and cream. The steam should not escape while baking, lest the fruit be not thoroughly cooked. Crumbs of stale bread, mixed thoroughly with finely cut rubarb and sugar, butter and water, and baked as above, will answer the same purpose.

THE HOUSEKEEPER

Hints That May Help.

GIRL'S DRESS.

The little dress that is closed invisibly at the back is one of the very latest.

This one includes that feature, yet is perfectly simple and easily made. There is a straight bodice joined to the blouse by means of a belt, and the blouse or body portion includes a separate front that can be made of contrasting material or of the same material braided or embroidered or trimmed to suit the fancy. Blue linen makes this one and the center front is of tucked lawn. There are tucks at the edges of the back portion that meet over the closing, and this closing is made for the entire length of the dress so that it can easily be opened out and laundered. The thinner lawns and batistes are pretty for the model as well as linen and materials of the sort.

The quantity of material required for the 6-year size is 4 1/4 yards 24 or 27, 3 1/2 yards 32 or 34, yards 44 inches wide with 1/4 yard 18 for the center-front, 1 1/4 yards of edging to make as illustrated. The pattern, No. 6673, may be had in sizes for girls of 4, 6 and 8 years of age and can be obtained at any May Manton agency or will be mailed to any address on receipt of price (10c.). Address 132 East Twenty-third street, New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

SOME TRIED RECIPES.

STEAMED BANANAS.

A breakfast dish, which may take the place of both fruit and cereal, is steamed bananas. Take large, sound and perfectly ripe fruit, remove the skins, and cut into halves lengthwise. Lay a folded napkin in the bottom of a steamer and place on it the fruit; steam five minutes, or until the slices are thoroughly heated. Have ready some strips of nicely browned and well buttered toast, and slip one-half banana on each strip; brush with melted butter and serve at once.

CHICKEN POT PIE.

Cut a chicken to pieces at the joints. Boil until it is about half done. Fry four small slices of fat pork. Place these at the bottom of a bakepan. Arrange the chicken evenly upon it and pour over it a little less than a quart of water. Add also two ounces of butter and a teaspoonful of pepper. Cover with a light biscuit crust. Bake an hour.

INDIVIDUAL STY, WHERRY SHORT-Cakes.

These are delightful for tea, made like baking-powder biscuit and slightly sweetened. Roll out an inch thick, cut in diamonds, squares or circles, and bake in a hot oven. When done break open—never cut—put between them mashed and sweetened berries, buttering the biscuit first, if preferred. Put on top of each little shortcake more of the mashed berries with one or two large berries cut in halves sprinkled with powdered sugar, and, if wished, crown each with a spoonful of whipped cream.

RHUBARB PUDDING.

Butter generously some thin slices of light, stale bread. Place a layer of rubarb in an earthen baking dish, sprinkle lightly with sugar, cover with bread slices, another layer of fruit, sugar and bread, until the dish is full, with bread on top. Pour over one cup of water and cover tightly with a plate, and bake in the oven for half an hour or more. Serve hot or cold with sugar and cream. The steam should not escape while baking, lest the fruit be not thoroughly cooked. Crumbs of stale bread, mixed thoroughly with finely cut rubarb and sugar, butter and water, and baked as above, will answer the same purpose.

Required: Some stewed pink rhubarb, four little sponge cakes, two whites of eggs, chopped pistachio nuts. Have some pink rhubarb nicely stewed with sugar and lemon peel. Grease a one and one-half pint pudding dish with butter, line it carefully with slices of sponge cake, put in a layer of rhubarb, and then more sponge cake until the basin is full. Cover with a saucer, with a weight in it, and leave till next day. Turn out to serve and then whip the whites of eggs to a stiff froth with a little brown sugar. Pile it roughly over the pudding, scatter a few chopped pistachio nuts over as a garnish and serve.

BAKED CABINET PUDDING.

Butter a melon mold and decorate with seedless raisins boiled till soft and drained. Put in a layer of thin sponge cake or lady fingers, then a layer of raisins, then cake until the mold is nearly full. Pour one pint of boiling milk over three egg yolks beaten with three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one saltspoon of salt. Turn it over the cake. Place the mold in a pan of warm water on the back of the stove for an hour, then bake or steam it one hour. Serve hot with any rich sauce.

Brightening Ivory

To clean ivory ornaments, first brush them well with a soft toothbrush, using lukewarm water and a little soap; then rinse them in water of the same temperature, dry with a cloth and a brush till the luster reappears, says the Woman's Home Companion. Pour a little alcohol upon the brush.

Whitening Out Dishes

Dishes that have brown marks may be made as good as new by putting in a pan and covering with cold water, to which one cupful of soda has been added. Place on the back of the range and allow to boil for about a quarter of an hour.

Plants for the Veranda

A few dollars spent in palms and blossoming plants for the summer veranda is money well invested, unless one has well-kept gardens about the house which serve as a setting.

A FEW USEFUL LAUNDRY HINTS

FIRST, hang up clothes by the thicker part, wrist or neck bands, etc., because, if hung by the thinner part, the water would run into the thick part, lodge there and take longer to dry. Second, hang up everything wrong side out, so that any accidental soil will not do so much damage as if it appeared on the right side, says the Philadelphia North American.

Many people find their irons quite rusty after they have been put away a few days. The way to prevent this happening is, before you put them away, to rub a little warm grease over them and then wrap them up in brown paper. When you take them out to use, dip them into hot water that has had a small piece of soda dissolved in it, rubbing and then putting them to heat in the usual way.

When they are ready to be used on the ironing board, have a piece of brown paper with a little powdered bath brick on it and rub the surface of your iron with this. It seems rather a lengthy process, but it really does not take long to do, and housewives will be rewarded for the trouble they have taken by finding the irons delightfully smooth and easy to use, and when they are like this the ironing can be done twice as quickly. Clothespins and rope will not soil clothes if they are occasionally cleaned by boiling in the wash boilers.

Season of Prints

We are approaching a season of prints, and while it is needless to include the much-in-evidence foulard, we see in it the keynote, says the East St. Louis Journal.

Its figures have been copied on dimity, organdie, barred muslin, crepe, net and on cotton foulard.

Every variation of the floral pattern is shown on these washable stuffs, and many of them have the added richness of the satin or mercerized stripe.

Pongees, too, are printed, and the whole tale has not been told without mention of the stamped and figured chiffons, which show forth a perfection not found in any other fabric.

Parisian Belt Fancy

There is a late fancy among some Parisian costumers for making the belts of the more elaborate gowns of a color in contrast to the whole color scheme of the garment.

Sets Shades of Blue

To prevent any shade of blue from fading, soak for two hours in a pail of water to which once ounce of sugar of lead has been added. Then be sure to dry well before washing and ironing.

Boots for Children

High buttoned fancy boots for children are strapped from the ankle to the shoe top.

Iron Mold Remover

Place the iron-molded part, stretched tight, over a small bowl three parts filled with boiling water, so that the steam may come through the fabric. Dissolve a teaspoonful of salt in a dessertspoonful of lemon juice, dip the feather end of a quill pen or a bit of cotton wool into this, and rub over the iron mold until it disappears; dip the material then well into the water. Afterward rinse very thoroughly in plenty of warm and then cold water.

Placing Rugs Properly

In placing Oriental rugs, a little experimenting is needed to obtain the best effects. It frequently happens that the entire tone of a rug is changed according to the way the light strikes the nap. It is a pretty well established fact that with the nap toward the light the general tone of the rug will be much lighter in effect than if the nap is placed from the light.

New Solid Mesh Bags

Solid mesh is newer than the open-work pattern in the gold handbag, and when lined with a color such as amethyst it is decidedly ornate.

Prevents Stretching

Be sure to iron garments with the straight of the goods, and thus prevent stretching of the bias seams.—Philadelphia Times.

The actual conferring of degrees takes place Tuesday morning. The Rev. Hugh Black delivers the commencement address, after which diplomas are awarded to some 376 students. At noon comes the collation, at which the graduating class and alumni are guests of the college.

On Tuesday evening the seniors have their class supper in the students' building. Leading members of the class respond to toasts, the class roll is called, and students who acknowledge their engagements to marry file around the table to the music of the wedding march. On this evening there are reunions and suppers for each returning class.

The class of 1910 holds its last class meeting the next morning.

Alumnae of All Classes for Thirty Years Attend

There are to be a large number of alumnae back, owing to the fact that it is President Seelye's last year. Every class since 1880 will be represented.

Among other business to be transacted will be the electing of the president and secretary of the alumnae association. This association is taking charge of the various reunions. The president, Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence Clark '83, and the treasurer, Miss Ethel Hale Freeman '02, retain their offices, as does one vice-president, Miss Anne W. Safford '92.

The candidates for the other vice-presidency are Miss Alma Baumgarten '98 and Miss Ruth B. Librarian Finds Suitable Building Brings Out Gifts

Following are extracts from the report made by the librarian to the president and trustees of Smith College relative to the work of the college library between May 20, 1909, and May 20, 1910:

"Nearly four months after the date on which the completion of the building was promised by the contractors it was necessary to move in, and on Monday, Nov. 29, 1909, the students began to use the new building.

"There have been added to the library since May 20, 1909, to the same date of the current year, 5905 volumes; of this number 2929 were bought and 2976 were gifts. The number of gifts during the previous year was 531. An increase of nearly 2500 volumes in gifts during the past year over last year is a striking evidence of the effect of the new building upon many, who believe that the college library is an important factor in all college work, and who are ready to contribute to its efficiency. The total number of volumes in the library is 35,083, exclusive of pamphlets and pieces of sheet music, which number about 7000.

"The list of periodicals has been increased by 50 new subscriptions, making a total of 250 periodicals for which the library subscribes.

"The great need of the library is a larger endowment fund. It would be a lasting tribute to the retiring president if the present L. Clarke Seelye fund might form the nucleus for an endowment of at least $100,000."

First Parliament Under the Reign of George V. Is Opened This Afternoon

HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE V.
Ruler of British empire is advised that the Liberals will postpone their campaign.

LONDON.—The first Parliament under the reign of George V. opened this afternoon. The Liberals, in keeping with their promise made immediately after the passing away of King Edward, announced that they were willing to postpone their campaign against the House of Lords until the new King becomes more familiar with his duties, but they again insisted that the Conservatives take no advantage of the truce in an effort to win support for the Lords.

It is believed that the agreement between the factions will not last more than two weeks. Each side is suspicious of the other, and it is considered inevitable that some of the leaders will take a step that will be considered a breach of the truce and thereby launch the old fight that was on before the recess.

THROUGH TO HORSE PARADE TODAY IN BROCKTON WEEK

Merchants' Festival Will Attract Edward Payson Weston, the Famous Walker, Friday and Saturday.

BROCKTON, Mass.—"Merchants' week" began to keep step to band music this forenoon, when a band concert was opened by Milo Burke at Perkins park. The change in the weather to bright sunlight put every one in the mood for outdoor enjoyment.

A big attraction of the week will be the reception which will be given Edward Payson Weston, the famous pedestrian, who will arrive Friday at noon, in response to telegraphic invitation from the Merchants Association. He will tell of his recent 90 days stroll from ocean to ocean at Y. M. C. A. hall and presumably will lead the children's parade Saturday forenoon.

The horse parade this morning aroused keen interest, Main street being thronged with spectators. There was a general outpouring from the trolley cars which came from neighboring towns and merchants are enthusiastic over the prospects for trade after the big show is over. There were nearly 200 horses in line, including showy tournaments. At the head of the line, led by mounted police, were the saddlers, matinee horses, runabouts and gentlemen's roadsters, single family horses, family pairs and ponies, in the order named. Then came light delivery and daily rigs, heavy single delivery, heavy single teaming and heavy double teaming trucks; heavy double trucks, hay and grain, ice and coal teams and heavy four-horse teams. This was the order observed and bunting, floral decorations and plumes and streamers added to the circus appearance, while the well-kept horses and neat equipages were a delight.

The parade was through the shopping district and neighboring streets and was viewed from the Metropolitan hotel by the judges: Henry Murphy of Stoughton, Thomas Green of Rockland and Edward Belcher of North Easton.

In addition to the arrangements made by the committee to make the children's parade on Saturday attractive to the school children, the James Edgar Company has offered prizes aggregating $100 for competing schools, the money to be used for purchasing whatever gifts for the schoolrooms or school buildings the winners may vote.

The city will be brilliantly illuminated this evening and plans have been made for the biggest night of the week.

MAYOR WILL ACCEPT RESIGNATION OF THE SCHOOLHOUSE HEAD

Mayor Fitzgerald said today that he will accept the resignation of Chairman R. Clifton Sturgis of the school commission at once and will ask City Engineer William Jackson to take charge of the department for the time being.

The mayor said that Mr. Sturgis had given a very capable, honest administration of his department and he regretted the resignation. He could not understand, however, why Mr. Sturgis should object to the appointment of the mayor's office and considered that he had made a mistake in protesting to the civil service commission against the appointment of Mr. Kennedy.

Chairman Sturgis of the schoolhouse commission in a statement today, says that he resigned because of the appointment of John F. Kennedy as a member of the commission, because from a business standpoint he does not consider Mr. Kennedy qualified to serve as a commissioner.

R. Clifton Sturgis, recently resigned as chairman of the schoolhouse commission, in a statement made public today, says that he resigned because of the appointment of John F. Kennedy as a member of the commission, because from a business standpoint he does not consider Mr. Kennedy qualified to serve as a commissioner.

Mr. Sturgis says that he stated early last month to Mayor Fitzgerald that he should resign in case Mr. Kennedy received his appointment and that he likewise protested to the civil service commission, giving reasons why Mr. Kennedy should not be approved by them. Furthermore Mr. Sturgis says that he wrote a letter to Mr. Kennedy several weeks ago stating his objections to Mr. Kennedy as a candidate for schoolhouse commissioner, and that he should consider it his duty to resign if he was appointed.

Mr. Sturgis maintains that the most friendly relations exist between himself and the mayor, Mr. Kennedy, and the working force of his department over which he has presided for eight years, but he feels that the civil service commission might have done differently especially after his protest.

OFFICERS STUDY NEEDS OF FORTS

Two inspecting officers who are making tours around the forts of Boston harbor will report the conditions of various property and buildings and recommend corrections of errors or overhauling of buildings if necessary.

Maj. Samuel C. Reber of the signal corps will confine his attention to property pertaining to his branch of the service, while Col. John V. R. Hoff will inspect other property.

STRETCH THREE-MILE LIMIT.

THE HAGUE.—Sir Robert Finlay continued Tuesday his presentation of the British side of the Newfoundland fisheries dispute before The Hague tribunal. He read a number of diplomatic documents for the purpose of showing that the negotiations which led up to the treaty of 1818 did not support the American contention that British jurisdiction in the bays did not extend beyond the three-mile limit of territorial waters.

GENERAL CARTER ACTING CHIEF.

WASHINGTON.—Maj.-Gen. William H. Carter assumes today the duty of acting chief of staff, succeeding Brig.-Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, who will go on leave of absence. General Carter will be acting chief of staff until the return of Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood in July from Buenos Aires, where he was sent as special commissioner to the Argentine exposition.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools, assisted by officers of the Y. M. C. A., has started a movement to teach every school child in Chicago to swim. Instruction will begin at an early date at several bathing beaches along the shores of Lake Michigan.

YOUR Advertisement

Silent Salesman

WOULD you not employ a salesman at any price, if he would talk to thousands of people in one day, and bring you business productive of lucrative results?

Would you not consider him a valuable asset to your business?

A salesman with the ability to accomplish this would be invaluable to you

"But," you say, "a salesman who can talk to thousands of people in a day is not to be found!"

WHAT THEN?

Talk to the people yourself in the same language a salesman would, through your advertisements in the daily papers.

Tell the people about your business, what you have to offer. Tell them about the value of your merchandise.

Let your values be honest values; let your advertising be truthful.

That Is What the People Want

Find the newspaper that has a clientele who read and follow the advertising columns, and when you find that paper use it as your silent salesman, and the more you use it, the larger will be the increase in your business.

REMEMBER that the same advertisement in the same paper, reaching the same people continually, builds up a clientele which is an asset to a business a merchant wants. The MONITOR can be the silent salesman because it is a home paper.

"Keeping everlastingly at it brings success."

"One paper in the home is worth a million on the highway"

THE LIBRARY ALCOVE
By SAM WALTER FOSS.

THE loose-leafed encyclopedia, if it fulfills the promise of its publishers, should give the public an absolutely up-to-date compendium of information. By a mechanical arrangement of the binding, loose leaves, containing the most recent information upon all subjects, can be inserted, and these loose leaves are promised to all subscribers by the publishers, as often as the need of them may arise.

It is easy enough for a reference librarian to get information in regard to ancient or medieval times, or information in regard to the events that happened 100, 50 or 25 years ago. But it is sometimes a very difficult thing to find exhaustive information in regard to the events that happened last month or last year. Such events have not been recorded in books; and magazine or newspaper data in regard to them are written without historical perspective by men who are not experts or authorities. This loose-leafed arrangement, if well done, will supply a need that has long been apparent.

The zeitgeist, the spirit of the age, moves so rapidly in these latter years that no book can keep up with it. Let a book embody the very latest researches upon the theme of which it treats, before it can be printed, bound and published it is pretty sure, in some respects, to be behind the times. Some new invention, some new discovery, some epochal historical event, will make some of its statements obsolete.

Perhaps the time will shortly come when the authors of all historical or technical books will issue them in the loose-leafed binding. Works on electrical subjects, written five years ago, have already become obsolete in many respects in the light of subsequent discoveries. The author of such a book may see his work superseded by another and perhaps inferior work, but one which the libraries and the technical students must buy in preference to his, because it contains the results of the latest knowledge on the subject. This superfluous of his work might be easily avoided if it were brought out in the loose-leafed binding. A book, like a man, must keep up with the times or fall into the rear among the obsolescences.

Perhaps this loose-leafed arrangement will enable all progressive authors to keep their books as progressive as themselves without the expense of bringing

AMERICAN SUGAR NOT INFORMED OF GOVERNMENT SUIT

Believed by Many That No Action Will Be Taken Until After Other Corporation Cases Are Settled.

OUTSIDE RULINGS

While it is entirely possible that the government intends to proceed forthwith with a new suit against the American Sugar Refining Company for conspiracy in restraint of trade under the terms of the Sherman anti-trust law, no official intimations to this effect have as yet come to officials of the company.

Should the government make such a move at this time it would be rather surprising in view of the general understanding among corporation heads that the bringing of further suits of this character would wait until the celebrated American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases are decided by the supreme court.

In its organization American Sugar would not appear to lay itself as open to the charge of being a combination in restraint of trade as does either Standard Oil or American Tobacco. This is because American Sugar is an operating company, while Standard Oil and American Tobacco are big holding companies owning stock of a host of subsidiary operating concerns.

American Sugar does, to be sure, have an investment of rising $22,000,000 in some 11 beet sugar companies at various points in the West which operate between them some 33 factories. However, with the exception of one single company American Sugar does not own over 50 per cent of the stock of any one of the 11 companies and in most of the 11 has much less than 50 per cent.

American Sugar has always treated its beet sugar investment as a defensive investment, made in order that if the beet sugar industry of the country grew to the proportions at one time threatened, the sugar company itself might have another leg to stand on through dividends paid on its minority stocks in such corporations.

So far as being a conspiracy in restraint of its own peculiar industry as an operating concern—the refining of cane sugars—is concerned, American Sugar does not today control as large a proportion of this industry as it did 10 years ago. American Sugar at one time produced probably close to 75 per cent of the refined sugar of the United States.

Today even its friends would not claim much if any over 55 per cent and the marked increase in competition during the last few years has testified to how absolutely open the refined sugar market is. In fact, if American Sugar had to depend upon its refining profits as such, the 7 per cent common dividend could hardly be shown as earned.

It is, of course, a historical fact, however, that 20 years' or more ago, American Sugar was put together through merger of various independent refineries just as all modern industrial corporations, like the Steel Corporation, American Telephone, etc., represent the merger and consolidation of various originally separate properties. Moving along such historical lines, there is ground for the basis of a government suit such as has been brought against Standard Oil.

But this Standard Oil case, if decided in favor of the government, would apply to a host of corporations and force drastic reorganizations all along the line. Apparently American Sugar stockholders have no specific cause for anxiety.

PIG IRON OUTPUT IS DECREASED

PITTSBURG—The total May production of pig iron by the blast furnaces of the country approximates 2,377,165 tons for the 31 working days, compared with 2,477,700 tons in April, which had 30 working days, a decrease of 100,535 tons.

The daily average production in May was 76,682 tons, compared with the daily average in April of 79,926 tons, a decrease in average daily production of 3344 tons. The number of blast furnaces in blast on the last day of May was 278, compared with 292 in blast the last day of April, a loss of 14 stacks in the active list. The loss of production in May, as compared with April was nearly equally divided between the merchant furnaces and the steel works stacks, the merchant furnaces production showing a loss of 55,559 tons and the steel plant stacks a loss of 49,572 tons.

The pig iron market continues quiet, but there is more inquiry for all grades, though there is practically no buying except in small lots, and prices are weak.

The market for furnace and foundry coals continues quiet for prompt and last half delivery. It is believed in some quarters that the announcement that several of the larger producing interests in the Connellsville region are to be merged into one company has had a good effect on the market.

WILL PAY TAX ARREARS. NEW YORK—The city reached an agreement with the Metropolitan Street railway, and the company will pay the balance of its nine years' franchise tax arrears.

FAMOUS FRENCH WRITER REVIEWS SITUATION HERE

Accounts for the Big Decline in New York Market and Declares That the Advance Following Panic Was Entirely Too Rapid—Reaction Was Inevitable.

The following highly interesting review of the financial and economical situation in the United States by Pierre Leroy-Beaulieu, the famous financial writer of France, in L'Economiste Français, has been translated for The Christian Science Monitor:

There has prevailed for some months, and especially since the early spring, a certain feeling of uneasiness through the United States. This uneasiness—we confine ourselves to this word, for it would be certainly too much exaggerated to speak of crisis—this uneasiness, we repeat, is especially financial. From the general economic point of view some disturbances are occurring and the situation does not entirely respond to the hopes conceived by the optimists unduly excited by the marvelous recovery in business which had manifested itself last year, hardly little more than a year after the panic in the autumn of 1907.

What are the causes of this trouble, and how great is the seriousness? Has not the recovery been too quick following the crisis? Has not violence been done to the very nature of things? Is it not going to reassert its rights, and will not the artificial boom of 1909 be paid for by a second panic and long depression? Or, on the contrary, is it merely a question of temporary stagnation, of one of those periods of indecision, perhaps of temporary revulsion, as is always to be observed even in the periods of most pronounced prosperity? Is it for this reason that it behooves us to examine into these matters all the more carefully because the French public finds itself invited more than it ever has been heretofore, and will be perhaps even more in the future, to interest itself in American enterprises.

In the first place, let us clearly outline the features of the situation. The aspect which is the most striking is the noteworthy decline in prices in the New York market after the tremendous rise in the spring and summer of 1909 which had carried prices of a number of shares above the high points reached before the crisis. Various fluctuations had already started in the autumn, with the general tendency to lower prices, but it has been especially since the end of winter that this has been accentuated. In order that we may best estimate the situation from the present standpoint we are giving in the tabulation which follows, in the case of 10 of the principal American railroad stocks, to which we have joined the Canadian Pacific and Steel trust, the highest figures for 1907 before the crisis and the lowest figures of the winter of 1907-8 following the panic, then the high point reached since then (generally in August or September, 1909); and, lastly, the lowest prices of this spring which date for the most part from the beginning of the present month:

Name.	Highest in 1907.	Lowest in 1907-8.	Highest in 1909.	Lowest in 1909.
Atch., Top. & S. F.	$108	$66	$125	$106
Ch. Mil. & St. P.	157	93	165	134
Ch. Mil. & St. P.	44	12	58	39
Illinois Central	107	107	128	120
New York Central	172	116	162	132
Pennsylvania	141	103	151	129
Southern Pacific	96	63	139	117
Union Pacific	34	9	24	23
Canadian Pacific	185	100	210	173
U. S. Steel	105	38	180	170
U. S. Steel	50	22	55	35

From the above table there are several things that should be remarked upon. In the first place, in the majority of the stocks considered the highest points last year were above the high points reached before the 1907 crisis. This seems to prove clearly that the course of the uplift has been a little too rapid. To extend prices scarcely 18 months after one of the most severe crises to the highest level that they have ever reached, notably beyond the highest figures reached after a long period of unprecedented prosperity, is, to say the least, extravagant; some people might be even tempted to employ a stronger term. A vast economical organization, however vigorous and however young it may be, does not recover so quickly after such a violent shock. The unwarranted high figures of last year were discounting the future too quickly and prematurely. It was only inevitable that it should be followed by revulsion.

What has been the importance of the decline? This is the second observation which our tabulation undertakes to make. In the case of a majority of the railroad stocks in the United States the decline is approximately 20 per cent, figuring from the highest prices of 1909. This decline is naturally accentuated with the most speculative shares, those not paying dividends, as Erie and Southern railway, where it has reached about one third. It is less in the case of Canadian Pacific, whose fluctuations are never as broad and are less sudden and severe than those of United States railroads. In short, even despite the most depressed market of the present spring, most of the ground regained since the crisis has been kept. Present prices really represent a giving way from the excessively high levels of last year, but still the present prices are higher than one would have conservatively hoped to see realized so quickly two years ago.

The proof that the high prices of last year were based on hopes of the future boldly discounted rather than on demonstrated facts is furnished us by an examination of dividends paid on the stocks with which we are concerned. These dividends are 10 per cent on the common stock of Union Pacific, 7 per cent on Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Great Northern and Illinois Central and 6 per cent on New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Atchison. As for United States Steel common stock, the disbursements were on the basis of 4 per cent last year and have now been raised to 5 per cent. From this it appears that, leaving aside Erie and Southern railway, which are not in the dividend paying class, the net return from all the others considered at their high points in 1909 ranged between 4 and 4 1/2 per cent. It was even lower than that on Pennsylvania. Atchison alone proved the exception, yielding 4 1/2 per cent. Now, in a young country like the United States, where the rate of interest should under normal conditions be higher than in Europe following a severe crisis, for stocks so many of which have for only a short length of time been paying their present dividends it is inconceivable that such a low return is insufficient. There should rightfully be expected a return of 5 per cent and even more, especially where it is a question, not of railroads, but of an industrial like United States Steel (the Steel Trust).

It is not right to confine ourselves to an examination of dividends, but to carry our investigations farther and to examine carefully the earnings themselves of the railroads. What course have these earnings taken since the crisis, gross as well as net? Does it justify the hope of an approaching considerable increase in dividends which might explain the advance in prices above that level which present distribution would warrant, or, on the contrary, do these earnings indicate a probability of stagnation?

During the year 1907 until the panic was precipitated in the fall net earnings of the companies had reached their high level. Gross earnings continued to steadily increase, but operating expenses progressed even more rapidly as a result of the general increase in commodities and the high cost of labor. Starting with September, and especially November, 1907, the decline in net income became enormous. Up till May, 1908, it remained of more import than the gross earnings, which also had begun to recede in large measure. So it is that net earnings of January, February and March, 1908, were more than 1/4 lower than those same months in the preceding year.

Starting with the middle of 1908, thanks to very rigid economies effected in the administration of railroads, operating expenses began to be confined. The reduction of net earnings in proportion to the preceding year became, first, relatively less than that of gross earnings, and then disappeared altogether in the fall; finally, in December, 1908, gross earnings themselves began to increase. In 1909 the increase became very rapid in both instances, but more especially in the case of net earnings. In consequence of which during these last few months they practically reached the level of 1907-8. The effects of the crisis were then found to be almost eliminated.

Was it therefore fully justified to return to the high prices which prevailed before this panic, and even in some instances to exceed them? This is a matter which should be carefully examined along with net earnings; in order to take full account of the dividends which they represent we must look at fixed charges. Now if net earnings were returning to the previous level, charges were already increasing proportionately, and they now threaten to increase still more.

Many undertakings begun by the railroad companies at the time when the crisis came on have been interrupted, and still others which were on the point of being undertaken have been postponed through inability to procure funds on reasonable terms. Later, when the state of the market became better, appeal was made to capital. During the year 1909 bond issues reached a very considerable amount. Borrowings today are consuming amounts larger than in 1906 and 1907, and without present dividends becoming compromised, for the best managed American companies are not in the habit of distributing their whole surplus at disposal, there remains less of a margin for their increase unless it be that net earnings themselves progress more rapidly.

In this respect we are concerned with two factors—gross earnings and operating expenses, the difference between which being net earnings. Now, gross earnings have not ceased increasing since December, 1908, and their rate of increase has continued very satisfactory during the last few months, but at the same time, operating expenses are increasing still more rapidly, and that to a certain extent explains it.

As a result of the panic there had been practised, as we have just stated, very vigorous economies, operating expenses having been reduced to the merest necessities. Such had been the practise up to the middle of 1909. No practise could have been saner for we have to proportion our manner of life to our resources and whenever there is a slight retrenchment it is natural to postpone to better days repairs and maintenances which are not absolutely urgent. But we must come to them sooner or later under penalty of jeopardizing the de-main of which we have charge. Therefore, from the second half of 1909 it has been necessary to increase operating expenses in the proportion that they had been reduced just previous to them.

The price of commodities rising also, and labor increasing very naturally its demands with the return to prosperity, the increase has become considerable, and has exceeded proportionately, if not absolutely, that of gross earnings; as the progress of net earnings has slackened. Last December it was completely arrested. While gross earnings of most of the American railroads were increasing about 6 per cent in comparison with the corresponding month of the year before, net earnings were decreasing about 1 per cent. In January the increment in gross earnings was about 14.6 per cent; that of net earnings about 12.7 per cent. In February gross earnings reached $200,129,000 compared with $172,751,000 for February, 1909; and net earnings became $56,204,000 compared with $48,910,000. It should be remarked in passing that the proportion of increase in operating expenses is greater; net earnings amount to only 28 per cent of gross earnings, and operating expenses consume 72 per cent. However it may be, gross earnings have increased in February at the rate of 15.8 per cent, and net earnings at the rate of 14.9 per cent. This in itself would still be a satisfactory enough condition if it were maintained, but it has not been so during the course of the following month.

We cannot yet consider the full results for the month of March, but we can consider results for that month in the case of the principal companies and we indicate them below as far as they concern the corporations which we have already discussed at the beginning of this article.

REAL ESTATE
Since Jan. 1, 1909, I have made cash sales of $2,962.58 in the Fisher Hill District, Brookline
from the land bought on that date. Others in a position to know say this is the largest sale from any one tract in this line. This opportunity is attractive to investors, high class builders and one to be seized by each person wishing to establish a home under exceptional conditions. REAL ESTATE MEN SAY THIS COMBINATION OF IDEAL CONDITIONS AND LOW PRICES CANNOT BE DUPLICATED TODAY. It will be difficult to equal in the future. Large or small restricted lots at from 30c to 45c. A few at even less. Terms of payment to meet the convenience of buyers. The Fisher Hill district has been carefully developed with attractive single houses, many of them costing a large sum, which are occupied by their owners. This land, quiet, secluded, free from all objectionable features, is but from one to ten minutes from Beacon Hill station, to minutes from South Terminal and from Beacon Street, and is a RARE CHANCE FOR MEN WHO ACT QUICKLY. THE HOME FORUM

Clothes at Commencement

It is said that the girls of an eastern college have banished millinery from the commencement exercises—at least on baccalaureate Sunday. Last year the graduates were submerged under a seething mass of millinery. What each girl had left visible of herself after donning her own extinguisher was quite hidden by the extraneous portions of her neighbors' finery. No one, moreover, could see the speaker, and even his voice came to them, the girls averred, blurred by the swish of silks and feathers and the susurro as of a flower garden.

There was a committee appointed by the seniors this year to consider the whole question of dress, partly in the hope of reducing it both as an item of expense at commencement and as an object of conspicuous interest. It was, however, felt to be not quite possible to restrain the young women who must be seen and known in one way or another, and if they cannot achieve college honors and are not born to high ability, must therefore thrust upon their backs what will pick them out for style and extravagance. Or at least this is what is said about it. Experience proves, however, that the best students in the class are sometimes the best—or the worst, as one considers it—in this question of modishness.

And still the question rises: Why should women desire to be conspicuous for the amount of expensive stuffs they can contrive to drape or dangle or drag or otherwise display about their persons? Why should a woman more than a man seek to make a work of art of herself? Man's aping of artistic types in dress seems limited to architectural features, such as the severe perpendicularity of his trousers and the rectangular effect of his Prince Albert, to say nothing of the stove-pipe hat. Woman, however, makes a picture of herself in line and color, a sculpture in form (not by any means Greek), would you the poetry of motion into her walk and the music of flutes into her laughter and her speech. Every gracious art is supposed to go to the making and the "make-up" of a perfect woman nobly planned; but whether this artistically conceived creation is she who can warm, comfort and command the world is still perhaps excessively doubtful.

Is not a devotion to dress after all the exploitation of personality? and is it not the meter of the "real lady" to make her personality as inconspicuous as possible? proving herself to the world by her deeds rather than by her personal appearance?

A VISIT TO BETHLEHEM

SOLOMON and I started for Bethlehem one very hot afternoon. Solomon is a dragoman, and having been educated in an English school he speaks English very well. We were on quite friendly terms, though I had only been a few days in Jerusalem, for he had already taken me to Bethany on a pouring wet day and we had both got soaked to the skin and covered with mud and had condoled with each other on these untoward circumstances. He had also conducted me one night to a Christian school where a play was being acted by the scholars, his brother being one of them. We walked there together by the light of a most magnificent moon and a very inadequate lantern which Solomon had brought to help out the moon, I suppose. Street lighting is considered unnecessary in Jerusalem. The play had turned out well worth seeing. It was chiefly concerned with Joseph and his brothers. The dignity and pathos which these lads exhibited was really surprising, and it would have been interesting to know how they had learned a style and manner which was quite suitable to Pharaoh and his great prime minister.

But I meant to tell of our ride to Bethlehem. We mounted our donkeys just inside the city gate and set off in a cloud of dust and under a blazing sun. But the dust lessened as we left the traffic behind and jogged slowly along an almost deserted road.

Everywhere Solomon told me some interesting tale: Here was a stone where some prophet had slept, out of this fountain a hero had drunk, on that hill Saul had searched for his father's asses, in this field the shepherds had watched their flocks by night, and there stands a huge Greek monastery. All this was poured out along the road till I got a little confused with it all. At any rate, every field, cave, fountain or pool had a story of its own, and I confess that this was by far the most interesting part of the excursion.

The holy sites in Bethlehem are necessarily disappointing. One has pictured so often the original simple scene, the rough cave used as a stable or out-house for cattle, as caves still are; the mother and babe quietly sleeping on piles of straw, the splendid Syrian stars seen through the open entrance, and the air thrilling to the cry of "On earth peace, goodwill toward men." But what one finds is so utterly different and so incongruous. A huge church, full of stained glass, marble, gilding, candles, priests, organ music, processions and incense.

Florence Nightingale

One of the first messages sent by King George has been to Miss Florence Nightingale, who has just celebrated her ninetieth birthday. Miss Nightingale, it will be remembered, with a staff of 38 nurses, was in charge of the nursing arrangements in the hospitals at Scutari during the Crimean war.

Cape to Cairo Railway

"You Americans always think of doing big things and have always been able to boast of the gigantic achievements of your country," remarked an Englishman. "But think of the Cape Town to Cairo railway," said Mr. Gildemeester, "that covers a stretch of 6400 miles from one terminal to another."

There are now 2500 miles to be completed and it will be finished in three years, being then the longest railroad in the world, covering 6400 miles with one straight track—think of it. When completed the traveler can reach from Cape Town to Paris in 10 or 11 days. The track traverses and opens up a country rich in every mineral, including gold, silver and even diamonds. What it will accomplish for the continent of Africa the world can only partially comprehend.

"Many American engineers," said Mr. Gildemeester, "are employed on the work, which is largely being done by Kaffir laborers, and when we have this railroad spanning the continent from tip to tip we shall have something that will set our Americans thinking of building your railway to Alaska, and on through Mexico to South America."—Exchange.

The new steamship passenger line from Galveston to European ports will be a welcome addition to the facilities already existing for Texans to go abroad.

The Quaker Meeting House at Jordans

IN the country of Buckinghamshire, England, is one spot of peculiar interest to Americans, by reason of its association with William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania. This is the little meeting house of the Society of Friends at Jordans. Situated in a wooded hollow at the foot of a hill, it is the very expression of seclusion and of peace. The building is a simple red brick structure, with an interior of the plainest—plain wooden wainscoting and benches, and whitewashed walls without adornment of any kind. On a small circular table, used formerly by William Penn, is the visitors' book, in which the names of Americans figure largely. The meeting house was built about 1679. At the present time two regular meetings are held in it every year, one on the fourth Sunday in May, the other on the first Thursday in June.

In the neighboring village of Chalfont St. Giles, situated some two miles to the northeast of Jordans, is the cottage where Milton lived and where he wrote "Paradise Lost," while two miles further on, still in the same direction, commanding the villa residences of Chorley Wood, is the fine old half-timbered house of King's farm, where William Penn was married, in 1672, to Gulielma, daughter of Sir William Springett.

Chinese Nightingales

A correspondent in Vienna, writing to the Daily Mail of London, reports that a number of Chinese nightingales have recently been imported into the city, where it is hoped they will make their home. Some 30 were released not long ago, and 12 of them are still to be found close to the tree where they were originally let loose. The remainder appear to be scattered about the other public parks in the town. In the event of the birds settling down in the various gardens, the authorities have decided to import further quantities.

GOOD LUCK AND BAD LUCK

OF the devil or personified evil. "There is no truth in him."

This understanding of the omnipotence of God, of good, strikes at the root of superstition and removes fear. We see, thanks to it, that man is not under condemnation of any sort, but is governed by the ever-operative law of good; and it is the conformity of human thought to divine Principle, to unchanging good, which determines the harmony of man's existence. There is no such thing as good or bad luck. Conformity to Principle, right thinking and right doing, assures health and harmony, happiness and abundance; while departure from Principle, wrong thinking and wrong doing, produces the illusions of want and sickness, of sorrow and death. As a man sows he must reap, and "there is no discount in the law of justice" (Science and Health, p. 5). The spirituality or materiality of thought, the reflection of divine Truth and Love or the manifestation of mortal ignorance and selfishness, determine the harmony or discord of existence.

Christian Science makes plain to its students that here or hereafter mortals must rise above all materiality—the "old man" must be put off and the "new man" put on—and that neither death nor any circumstance other than persistent right thinking and doing is going to help in any way toward this ultimatum. And it further insists that right thinking and doing is not merely the measuring up to some human standard of thought and conduct, but the bringing of thought and life into line with the truth of being; namely, the omnipotence and omniscience of good, and the consequent refusal to accord power or place to evil of any sort.

This is the constantly reiterated teaching of the Bible, but the human mind has "sought out many inventions" and obscured the unvarying action of the spiritual law. God's law, however, continues to urge its claims, and they are wise who, when discord comes upon them, look into their own consciousness to see what is wrong there. The mathematician, when he fails to demonstrate the basic law of mathematics, does not put down his failure to the weather, or any other outside circumstance. Rather does he try to discover the error in his thinking which has produced the discordant result, for until that is rectified he knows that a harmonious solution cannot be reached.

It is not otherwise with all the affairs of mortal existence, and what has so often been taken as a trial sent by God for some wise purpose of His own, is nothing but the suffering which wrong thinking brings and which claims reality and power till the error of belief which produced it is destroyed by Truth and human thought comes into line with the divine. Then, and not till then, will it be understood what Mrs. Eddy means when she writes, on page 86 of Science and Health, that "trials are proofs of God's care," for trials point to the purifying influence of divine Principle in human affairs, and they are wise who heed the warning given and address themselves without delay to the task of setting their mental house in order. "Blindness and self-righteousness" may "cling fast to iniquity" (Ibid., p. 448), but sooner or later every thought must be brought into captivity "to the obedience of Christ," and it is for each one of us to determine whether the process shall be slow or fast, discordant or harmonious.

The ability to smile, to enjoy the laughter of others, to spread the contagion of happiness wherever we go, makes us not only a welcome guest, but an actual blessing.—Edwin Osgood Grover.

Make Me as One of Thy Servants

Dismiss me not thy service, Lord,
But train me for thy will;
For even I in fields so broad
Some duties may fulfill;
And I will ask for no reward,
Except to serve Thee still.

All works are good, and each is best
As most it pleases Thee;
Each worker pleases when the rest
He serves in charity;
And neither man nor work unblest
Will Thou permit to be.

O ye who serve, remember one
The worker's way who trod;
He served as man, but now his throne
It is the throne of God:
The scepter he hath to us shown
Is like a blossoming rod.

Firm fibers of the tree of life
Hath each command of his,
And each with clustering blossoms ripe
At every season is;
Bare only, like a sword of strife,
Against love's enemies.

Our Master all the work hath done
He asks of us today;
Sharing his service, every one
Share, too, his sonship may.
Lord, I would serve and be a son;
Dismiss me not, I pray.

An Estimate of Mrs. Browning

A high authority in literary criticism speaks of Mrs. Browning as a rhymist at 10, an author at 16; an omnivorous reader, a loving student of philosophy and the classics. In style original from the beginning, remarkable alike for defects and for beauties; often rugged and unfinished, from subordination of taste to excess of feeling; always intense, rarely sportive; worshipful and sympathetic, tremendously sensitive to the sorrows of existence; the most fragile of beings, yet essaying to reach the infinite; all ethereal yet all human, the idol of her kindred, says a writer in the Louisville Herald.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning is considered by many to be quite on a level with her husband, so far as her achievements in the line of poetry are concerned. Her lyrical capabilities were of the highest order, and in some ways she ranks up with the greatest of the poets. In but few of the mighty singers of the past do we find a profounder insight into the human heart or a rarer expression of the deeper longings of the soul.

Competent critics declare that her genius was perhaps as great as that of any poet of our generation; that while in certain intellectual qualities she was inferior to Tennyson and Browning, in others she was their superior.

More Congratulations on His Good Fortune

Colonel Roosevelt's baggage, as well as that of his family, will be admitted into the port of New York without inspection and free of duty. Having been in London in an official capacity, he ranks as a recognized diplomat, and his effects are, in consequence, excused from the exactions of the tariff collectors.—Dallas News.

The responsibility of tolerance lies with those who have the wider vision.—George Eliot.

To get peace, if you do want it, make for yourselves nests of pleasant thoughts. None of us yet knows, for none of us has been taught in early youth, what fairy palaces he may build of beautiful thoughts—proof against all adversity. Bright fancies, satisfied memories, noble histories, faithful sayings, treasure-houses of precious and restful thoughts, which care cannot disturb, nor pain make gloomy, nor poverty take away from us—houses built without hands.—Ruskin.

Growing Lavender

Lavender can be grown on more different kinds of soil than is generally supposed. Mitcham lavender, which is sold in London in the month of August by vendors who still chant almost the last of the old "cries of London," is grown on the Surrey chalk. Though there are several varieties of lavender, Mitcham lavender is considered the best, but the land on which it was originally grown is now covered with houses and has become a suburb of London. A few years ago a botanist observed that plants of the same tastes as lavender flourished on the sandy heaths near Bournemouth in the south of England, and now a thriving lavender industry has been developed on what was once almost worthless ground. Lavender was once a native of the hot hills of the French and Italian Riviera, and of the lower slopes and valleys of the Alps. To those who grow the flower in large quantities, the chief product is the oil of lavender, produced by distillation, and used for making lavender-water, scented soaps and powders, and for other purposes.

A Parisian Tribute

The proposal to name a Paris street of secondary importance near the avenue Victoria after King Edward VII. will possibly be dropped in favor of an amendment for baptizing the rue Royale in his majesty's name. It is known that for many years the Paris municipal council has made a point of celebrating foreign, local and national personalities by giving their names to different streets, but it is doubtful whether any such compliment of this kind has been paid by the change of name of so important a street. Alexander III. of Russia is celebrated by a bridge and the avenue connecting the bridge with the Champs Elysees, but both the bridge and the avenue were new, whereas the rue Royale, leading from the Madeleine to the Place de la Concorde, has had this name for a century at least, and is perhaps one of the best known thoroughfares in the whole of Paris.—Pall Mall Gazette.

As the architecture of a country follows the earliest structures, American architecture should be a refinement of the log-house. The Egyptian is so of the cavern and mound; the Chinese of the tent; the Gothic of overhanging trees; the Greek of a cabin.—Hawthorne.

Regulation and Ownership

IN THE course of recent discussion of the extent to which government regulation of the railroad business may go, the question has more than once arisen: How far can this regulation be extended before it shall take on, practically, the form of operation, and will not this eventually lead to public ownership? It is recalled that the interstate commission was at first empowered simply to prevent discrimination favorable to or against the shipper. Its duties were supervisory in character simply, and it was not intended that the commission should interfere with the operation of public carriers as business enterprises. It was not long before further steps were taken and closer supervision was the result, with attempts at actual regulation here and there. Later, the commission has felt competent, and has been empowered, to pass upon freight rates made by the companies and to judge as to their reasonableness and fairness. Now nothing short of the privilege of actually making the rates will satisfy those who are "strengthening the hands" of the commission.

These steps would have been impossible were it not that the people are coming more and more to regard the common carriers in the light of public servants rather than private corporations. On the other hand, thoughtful people are bound to recognize the fact that one of the serious consequences of this tendency is to excuse an invasion of private rights, since it is private capital and not public money that is invested in the railroads.

The limit of extension of government regulation has not been reached, but when the government undertakes to say upon what terms the transportation companies shall do business with their patrons, we are getting very close to it. Procedure along this line must be, at least, well-advised if it is not to lead to actual ownership.

THE Persian prince who has just arrived in New York and who is said to have learned to speak English rather fluently in 24 days of study ought to be offered the chair of foreign languages in some one of the American colleges.

It is probable that Colonel Roosevelt has enjoyed no dinner abroad more than he did the one given on Monday evening by the Institute of Journalists at Stationers Hall in London, which was attended by three hundred prominent literary men, including the editors of most of the London newspapers. The affair was given a humorous trend by the placing before the colonel of the "biggest stick" in the world, the composing stick of Benjamin Franklin. He took the "big stick" for his text, explained how the phrase originated and evidently tried to get as much fun as possible out of the occasion. In view of his past utterances, it must have been highly entertaining to his hearers when Colonel Roosevelt said he was "impressed with the need of newspapers speaking softly regarding the affairs of other nations."

Colonel Roosevelt told the men of the press that he had thoroughly enjoyed his stay in England, "but," said he, "judging from your comments, some of you have not shared my enjoyment." He referred to his Guildhall speech, and attempted to allay any anxiety in regard to his future remarks by saying, "I will try not to overplay my hand." This discloses the fact that Colonel Roosevelt is not indifferent to the criticism which has been called forth by his address to the British public, in which he says he spoke "with frankness and open nature" and "with the same sincerity which has sometimes failed to endear me to the people of my own country."

Admitting that it was not good form for the guest to offer advice to his hosts about their household affairs at the Guildhall banquet, it is hardly fair to Colonel Roosevelt to assume, as has been done by some commentators, that he spoke on the British Egyptian policy on information gained only by his year's sojourn in Africa. No one who is at all familiar with the ex-President's methods of investigation and study can doubt that he was thoroughly well informed on Egyptian affairs before he went abroad; that he had read Lord Cromer's writings and those of other authorities, and that after he had been over the ground and conferred with leading men he was fitted for and capable of forming just conclusions. We believe that his advice will be accepted by our British cousins as sincere and even valuable.

THE report of a serious revolt of the Indians of Yucatan will serve as a reminder that there still remain, in various sections of the western continent, detached portions of the primitive, elemental peoples whose forebears occupied the country when Columbus discovered the new world.

American Capital in Canada

report in the press that certain gentlemen interested in finance have gone to Canada to discuss Canadian railroad projects.

Capital will gradually do a good deal more than treaties; when the citizens of one country lodge their capital in the railroads of another, there are immediately created a great number of men personally interested in the civil welfare of the first country who will instinctively foster its business and the stability of the government under which the business is carried on. The merchant and mechanic and banker are members of the world's peace corporation, because their work is that of putting together and not of taking apart. Who dares to reprehend such work? The people have had enough of dislocation; our library shelves groan with the exploits of pompous destruction and every nation in the world is paying for the war of yesterday. In the hands of the United States and Canada there is the possibility of the great work of reasoned peace, by a steady, every-day forging of such links between each other that in questions affecting the integrity of this continent's serenity they shall always be brothers and act together. By so doing they can give to the world the impressive sight of two great communities whose acts are governed by the intelligent sentiment of peace strengthened by prosperity and whose interests cannot be thought of apart.

We can congratulate ourselves that such a thing is coming to pass and that it is only by the flogging of the demagogue that the peoples can be aroused into a suspicion of one another, but even this mistake can only be of the moment. Instead, there is a wiser and saner view that each government owes to the other a debt of patience and generosity and the practical knowledge of the fact that a normal and active circulation of resources and commodities between the two countries is the surest way not only of making them good friends but of showing them that the interest and profit of such friendship can be best subserved by their presenting to the world such an attitude toward each other as shall discourage the introduction of any disturbing factor.

Harvard College

It is the glory of the man who has learned, that with his knowledge he shall serve the state, binding its members close together with the strong withes of generosity of thought, putting into practice always what he has learned for the best performance of his duties and sloughing self away boldly and gladly. Who that has paced the hall of that memorial erected in honor of those ever living who loved their country better than themselves can think for an instant that what impelled them does not impel their brothers still? Their deeds were not of combat and weapons; one reels away in noisy dust, the others crumble and are not; their doing was of ideas, to serve the right and to make free. Those ideas exist today at Harvard as they have now for centuries; they have no youth, no age, but an immortal strength that spreads and is felt in all places throughout this country.

The hope of the United States is in a reasoned democracy of excellence that teaches our citizens that all can do the best and be the best, and to spurn the counsels that would teach that in our colleges any privilege can lie entrenched. It is the business of a college to teach youth to pick true things and to show them that when any two men have seen a point of light together then in that little commonwealth of brightness they are fellow-citizens and equals. Privilege and monopoly batten on darkness, they cannot stand the light, but there is too much talk in some quarters of the form of privilege created by money as existing at Harvard; this talk is not very wise; it is not based on facts, and it encourages the thoughtless jealousy that is the great enemy of a democracy, a thing in our public life that it is our duty as citizens to combat.

When one in three of the undergraduates of a university is earning his way through college in whole or in part, then it takes a somewhat robust imagination to picture that university as thronged by crowds of gilded youth that, when they are not strolling through silken Samarkand, refresh themselves under the leafy shelter of cedar Lebanon. Nor, again, can it be said that the gentlemen of the faculty at Cambridge are cumbered with much riches, the embellishment of their lives being the high laurel of work and faithfulness.

Their stately mother by the River Charles teaches her sons that there are no boundaries where efficiency and worth are concerned; she teaches the lesson of nationality, and looks with yearning eyes beyond the Rocky mountains and below the capes of Hatteras, hoping to see that honor, selflessness and love of country shoot out their vital rays to the uttermost parts of the government that when she had numbered a hundred and fifty years was an infant groping for its new-born strength.

She has these hopes and stands serene upon them, but will not bargain their fruition for the surrender of a jot of those great rules of right which inform her life and make her rugged fame; these rules and their standards she has seen put in practice by those she has sent out to do their country's work, and she must ever foster them to be the willing servant and the faithful friend of the people of the United States.

Postal Banks, Conservation, Statehood

ASSUMING that the railroad bill shall be agreed to in conference, or that the measure passed by the Senate shall be put through the House and become law, there are three other bills to which the Republican platform stands committed and to which the Taft administration stands pledged—namely, the postal savings bank bill, the bill giving the right to the President to withdraw certain public lands pending action by Congress regarding their disposition, and known as the conservation bill, and the bill admitting Arizona and New Mexico to statehood.

There seems to be no question now that the postal bank bill shall have first consideration, but the Senate on Monday, by a decisive vote, gave the conservation bill right of way over the statehood measure. The matter of precedence would not be important under ordinary circumstances, but in the present instance it is taken to mean, and with considerable reason, that the statehood bill must go over. It will stand little better chance of passing next winter than it does now because of the rush of business in the short session. It may go over to the next Congress. Naturally, the friends of statehood are disappointed, but as they have been disappointed at almost every session regularly for the last twelve years, they have probably learned by this time to bear their setbacks with resignation. Seriously, however, the territories seeking admission are becoming better prepared for the responsibilities of statehood year by year. Immigration and changes wrought by the growth of public education are transforming the southwestern territories. They cannot be much longer refused admission to the sisterhood of states.

In the meanwhile, if the administration is not to be denied further legislation of any kind, Congress must bestir itself.

THE two parties of explorers that are now on their way to the top of Mt. McKinley and that are following the route Dr. Cook claims to have taken, can each act as a "spotter" for the other and thus settle "then and there" the truth of any claim either may make upon returning home. Had Commander Peary and Dr. Cook thus checked each other's daily advances to and from the pole a world of controversy might have been avoided.

The Electric Lighting of Chicago

IF THE original plans for the utilization of the waterpower of its $50,000,000 sanitary canal shall be carried out, Chicago may easily become the most completely and most brilliantly illuminated great city in the world. Chicago was one of the first cities in this country to install a municipal electric light plant, and this has been developed until arc lights have supplanted gas throughout the main portions of its three principal divisions. But a contract has just been entered into between the city authorities and the officers of the Chicago sanitary district (which is itself a municipality) whereby the city is to be given electric power created on the canal for 10,000 new arc lights, 3000 of which are to be installed next year, the remainder within four years.

The price that Chicago will pay for these lights is $130,000 per annum, the amount going into the treasury of the sanitary district and to this extent relieving Chicago taxpayers. But supposing that none of it were covered into a public treasury, it is estimated that Chicago's saving in electric illumination, when it shall have drawn upon the canal power to its full capacity, will be fully $1,000,000 a year.

The lesson in this for other cities—or for those cities that stand in need of it—is that it pays to provide public improvements when they are needed and to look beyond the present in providing them.

Census Reports and the Guessers

IT WILL be one of the most remarkable things of these remarkable times if Director Dana Durand of the census bureau shall be able to send out bulletins making the results of city enumerations entirely satisfactory to the cities concerned, or to their immediate rivals. No census director has ever been able to do it in the past, and it is doubtful, even taking into consideration the varied and costly counting machinery at his disposal, and his reputed disposition to be agreeable, that Director Durand can do it in the present.

Of all classes of people the guessers of population are, generally speaking, the most difficult to please. They base their guesses, as we all know, on municipal statistics, on the observations of old citizens, on directory names, on the children in the schools, on the per capita consumption of pie in some places, beans in other places and doughnuts in still other places, and no two of them were ever known to start out on the same premise or to arrive at the same conclusion.

Now that some days yet are to elapse before the bulletins of city population be sent out, it is only in line with good public policy that all citizens should prepare to resist the temptation to be disappointed when they come, and try to overcome the disposition to find fault with the director of the census if his figures do not agree with those contained in the boom literature of their towns.

OUT of the Bryan-Harmon controversy in Ohio has arisen an interesting and profitable discussion as to whether the political state convention is more or less representative than the state Legislature. To put it in another way, the question is: Would the indorsement of a candidate for the United States Senate by a state convention—an indorsement which, if by the dominant party, would practically mean election—insure the choice of a better man than is possible under the present system? It seems to be assumed by those who favor the more direct method of electing United States senators that a convention is more trustworthy than a legislative body. The reason for this is the popular belief that legislators in the states are usually chosen not by the people or even by the parties, but by the political managers of both parties. Thus, it is held, the members of the state Legislatures are not, in reality, popular representatives, but rather are chosen to serve the party managers, who in turn represent and serve those interests likely to be affected favorably or unfavorably by legislation.

If this be admitted, a similar weakness must be charged against the state political convention, delegates to which are as a rule chosen by the party managers. The indorsement of an unfit candidate for the Senate could be brought about as readily in a convention as the election of an unfit candidate can now be brought about in the Legislature. Everything considered, and especially the point that it requires two bodies to elect while it would require only one body to indorse, there is more safety for the public in the Legislature than in the convention.

There is, however, a way out. If the people will take into their own hands the naming at the polls of their choice for senator the problem will be solved.

Education in Moving Pictures

EDUCATION is not the leading idea in the presentation of moving pictures, but it is one of the results. To a certain extent these views take the place of travel and they are an excellent supplement to reading. Reference is here made to the moving pictures shown in the better class of theaters. Scenes are presented in the streets of foreign and home cities the world over. One need not leave his own town and yet may see all the phases of active daily life at points far remote. Birds and beasts in their native haunts and pursuing their accustomed habits are by the aid of the camera brought to your sight as you sit in the lecture hall or playhouse.

The enterprise manifested in the collection of picture films is astonishing. One firm has had an outfit in South America for four months and expects to show as a result of the work many films that will instruct the public regarding the people, industries and scenery of that country. Another firm is arranging to send an outfit of camera men, stage managers and actors by special train over the lines of the Canadian Pacific railroad through to the Pacific coast, illustrating en route picture plays into which the scenery and industries will be naturally introduced.

Licensed manufacturers, who submit every film they make to the censorship of the New York board of censors, men and women representing prominent churches and educational institutions, are making gratifying advance in the standard of their output. It is estimated that 5,000,000 persons daily pay to see picture shows in this country. There is need of strict censorship of films to keep these exhibitions up to a proper tone and to achieve a real benefit.

The Legislature and the Convention
